What Is Wrong?
When and If War Comes
Sleeping in the Air
Voice of the Church

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

Says one newspaper: "The Nazi menace is spreading over the United States." Says another, shuddering: "Russia is organizing and drilling a 'Red army' in the United States."

So there you have "two big dangers."

Then comes news that directors of the Bank for International Settlement in Switzerland will protest to Germany, "to protect the interests of American holders of Dawes and Young bonds, on which Germany has declared a moratorium."

England found a short way to settle that moratorium, and make Germany pay. This country doesn't seem to know how to do anything of that kind although %50 per cent of the Dawes loan and 30 per cent of the Young loan are held by Americans.

What is the matter with this country, swindled by assorted gangs of politicians, robbed by innumerable gangs of grafters, racketeers, highwaymen, degraded by indecent moving pictures and other entertainments, the public peace and faint signs of returning prosperity imperilled by strike troubles and violence?

Has the United States become a sort of "Western China," unable to take care of itself? In what direction is it headed?

Rudolph Hess, representing Hitler, and speaking as "a soldier of the front," suddenly changed, in his broadcast, from German to French, and appealed to the old enemy across the line not to make necessary the building of new trenches, urging that trench life is not pleasant.

Herr Hess might have added to his speech:

"While our German troops never reached Paris in all the four years of the last war, remember that German airplanes would reach Paris in the first two or three hours of the next war, and a few hours later not one of the great monuments of Paris would be left standing, not Notre Dame, the Madeleine or the beautiful Sainte Chapelle."

Bombarding airmen will not spare monuments dearest to the enemy.

"Sleeping car airplanes" are now a reality, having been foretold in this column and elsewhere, for years. Last night two fully loaded passenger planes, with 12 sleeping berths in each plane, passed each other going east and west, between New York and Chicago. Passengers report the trip quiet and peaceful. Some had to be awakened after the plane landed.

Foolish plans are proposed and foolish things are done, but real progress continues.

What is said in the pulpits reflects wide opinion. Here are extracts from a few sermons in one big city:

The Reverend Dr. Russell, Presbyterian:

"Far from curbing the rich, and helping the poor, NRA is deceiving the poor man. Prices are rising as fast as, or faster than wages."

The Reverend Dr. Hough, dean of the Drew Theological Seminary:

"We have no end of cleverness, no end of control of the world. But we lack vitality. That magnificent physical energy, that intellectual vigor, is gone."

Of this condition he says: "It has a new pseudo-optimism than ever before to conceal disillusionment and cynicism."

The Reverend Dr. Gilkey, Congregationalist:

"We believe in God on the ground of logical necessity."

God, according to Dr. Gilkey, is the "key to life's puzzle." And immorality "is not pictured in terms of a golden heaven and a blazing hell, but as a further opportunity for growth in character."

The Reverend Dr. Idleman, of the Church of the Disciples of Christ, foresees for the United States a revolt worse than the Russian Revolution, because ours is a system under which "a few have luxuries, and there is a great multitude who obtain their daily bread from the garbage pail." That, he says, cannot last. The only remedy is "diffusion of wealth."

Dr. Idleman would be surprised to find how short a time that "diffusion" would last; how little it would amount to. It is not what the selfish few have accumulated, but what the working

'Virgin Shrine' Discovered in Their Home

SCORES STILL SEEK CURES AT FEET OF 'MIRACLE'

Priest Calls "Image" in Southbridge Only Mark of Rains

Southbridge, July 10—Mooted manifestation of the Deity or only the result of a leak in the roof, the shadowy figure supposed to resemble the "Virgin in Tears"—on the wall of a cottage home here — continued today to attract a few cure-seekers.

Yesterday's pilgrimage of thousands of this hall, the blind and the suffering was not duplicated, however, following pronouncement of the opinion of Right Reverend Monsignor M. A. Desrochers that the depressed outline on the wallpaper is only the result of rain leaking through the roof and wetting the plaster.

A few scores who still hoped regardless, did visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Gaumond and were admitted in small groups to the "shrine" in the second floor bedroom, where the four-foot outline may be observed.

WON'T BAR PUBLIC

Mrs. Gaumond, announcing she would continue to admit the public, said:

"I am convinced this is a holy image and I shall not bar anyone."

Monsignor Desrochers of Notre Dame Church here, after visiting the home and inspecting the outline, said:

"There is a possible similarity to the likeness of the Virgin in profile, but it is explainable by the capillary action of the rain on the walls. The likeness exists chiefly in the imagination of those who look upon the outline."

Mrs. Gaumond, exhausted by the crowds which yesterday stormed her home, had her doors locked today but admitted small groups

Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Gaumond found the "apparition" of the "Virgin in Tears" in an indentation in the wall of their home at Southbridge starting a rush of crippled and invalids there for a "miraculous" cure. Rev. Monsignor M. A. Desrochers today declared the "image" was only the marking of rain water, but the "shrine" is kept open despite the church ban. LONG COUNT FIGHT ENDS IN VICTORY

Executors Lose Business to a Medford Woman on Ruling

Winning a court battle started last November, Mrs. Elizabeth Riley, of Medford, who once was the store's sweeper and office girl at $2.50 a week, recovered today management of "Driscoll," fashionable gown shop at 715 Boylston street.

In Probate Court at Dedham, Judge Joseph R. McCoole not only instructed the executors, Judge Edward L. Logan, Mary Donnelly and Gordon Coughlan, to turn the business over to Mrs. Riley but he ordered that $5000 be slashed from the executors' bill for services.

BROTHERS CUT OFF

A trusted employe of the establishment for two decades, Mrs. Riley, on the death of Mrs. Mary A. Dolan, who conducted the modiste shop, was left the business, $25,000 in cash and one-half the residue of the Dolan estate of $447,000.

Contest of the will was brought by two brothers, Cornelius and Daniel Driscoll of Scranton, Pa., who were cut off with $500 each. The niece, Mary J. Donnelly of Commonwealth avenue, was left $20,000 and there were many public and charity bequests.

This will contest finally was settled out of court, with a money settlement understood to have been made for the brothers.

KNEW OF LOSSES

Last November, Mrs. Riley filed a petition in probate court, asking removal of the special administrators and charging that, through their insistence in conducting the business in Boylston street, she was ignorant of the figures but knew there had been substantial losses.

She cited that one loss of $18,000 came through General Logan shifting funds of the shop from another bank to the Federal National Bank, which later closed.

General Logan testified that he believed the Federal National, of which his brother, Theodore, was an official, was sound, and that some of his own money remained in the bank when it shut down.

Dumaine Defiant in Love

"They'll have to go some to annul it."

This was the only comment forthcoming today from 25-year-old Christopher Dumaine, son of a Boston financier, whose secret marriage to Yvonne Primeau, 28, Manchester, N. H., hotel employe, has just been revealed.

The wedding took place in Derry, N. H., last Saturday, after Judge H. L. Grinnell of the Derry court had granted the couple a waiver of the five-day law. Attorney Walter A. Pillsbury, acting as justice of peace, performed the ceremony.

Frederic C. Dumaine, treasurer of the Amoskeag Mills, president of the Waltham Watch Company, director of the First National Bank of Boston, of the New Haven Railroad and a number of other corporations, is the father of the bridegroom.

He could not be reached for a statement when the news leaked out.

PONZI TO TAKE FIGHT TO COURT

With all the energy and finesses that enabled him to inflate a $9,000,000 bubble a decade ago, Charles Ponzi, one-time "financial wizard," applied himself today to the problem of avoiding deportation.

Miss Mary Ward, immigration commissioner, has set next Thursday noon as the deadline of Ponzi's time in this country. He must report by that hour at the immigration station in East Boston and await the next government move to deport him to his native Italy—never to return to the United States.

Such a situation might discourage the ordinary alien, but not Ponzi. For Ponzi, during his years in Plymouth Jail and State Prison has studied law—particularly the

HITLER PLANS PEACE PLEA TO WORLD

Berlin, July 10—Chancellor Hitler will, on Friday, the 13th, address the German people through the Reichstag on a subject which could be comprised under the title, "Peace and Conspiracy Against Germany."

Undeniable anxiety of the Germans about the French military intentions is back of the Reichstag meeting as well as the fact that Hitler, now on a brief vacation in the Bavarian Alps, has finally decided to present his defense to the German people for the killings, in suppressing the storm troop "revolt," which have disturbed the country as no other event since the Nazis came into power.

PLANS PLEA TO FRANCE

The Reichstag is no longer a legislative body but merely a tribune for government's statements of the greatest importance.

The last time it met was in January. It is believed Hitler intends to make another great plea to the world to believe that he wants peace and to France to refrain from war.

Hitler today finds himself in a position similar to the period immediately after he took power when the world was alarmed by the Jewish outrages and the terrorism against his political enemies.

France at that time, as has later become known, actually reflected upon an attack. The French gen-

Millen Victim Left But $10

In defense of other people's money, Forbes A. McLeod gave his life—and left a $10 estate.

That appraisal of the estate of the Needham policeman, slain during the Needham Trust Co. robbery, was filed in Norfolk Probate Court today by Francis J. Malumphy, appraiser.

McLeod's only property when the machine gun of the Millen-Fahey gang put him down on Feb. 2 consisted of a gold watch and a plated chain—value $10.

McLeod's widow, Mrs. Margaret E. McLeod, was named administratrix of this estate.

Body of Young Boy Is Identified

Newburyport, July 10—The body of a young boy, found floating five miles off Plum Island was tentatively identified today as Gerard Chatigny, 12, of 11 Federal street, by his father, Destin Chatigny.

The boy, believed to have drowned July 3, had recently had some teeth filled, and the dentist will be called in to aid in identification.

Abandoned Car New Magnolia Gem Clue

The sedan found abandoned in Everett yesterday became the all-important clue in the Magnolia jewel robbery today, after it had been definitely identified as the car figuring in a hit-and-run accident in Peabody on Friday, soon after the crime.

Detectives A. A. Formosa, J. Henry Burgess and J. Russell Moody went to Needham to question Benjamin Mills, driver of a machine struck by the other car in Peabody at 11:05 Friday morning.

CAR IDENTIFIED

Mills positively identified the abandoned sedan as the car that struck his while going at terrific speed on the Turnpike. He made the identification from the number plates.

Woman at 75 Sets Pace in 75-Mile Hike

When Mrs. Marie E. O. Giovanni, 75-year-old Gold Star mother, feels the need of exercise she walks a dozen miles or so, much to the amazement and discomfort of those who accompany her.

Last Friday she set out from her home in Clifton street, Cambridge, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Louise Tosi, who is 44, and lives next door to her mother. Another neighbor, Mrs. Louise Marcini also 44 years old, fell in behind the aged woman.

Mrs. Giovanni had decided she would call on her son Andrew who lives in Cochituate, 18 miles away. The start was made at 10:30 a. m. and the three women arrived at Andrew's home at 4:30 p. m.

Mrs. Giovanni set the pace all the way and after an hour's rest was taken back home in her son's car.

She is a slight woman, weighing only 110 pounds. Her daughter weighs almost twice as much and has difficulty keeping up with her mother's pace. The Gold Star mother lives on the pension of her son, Joseph, a member of Company C, 101st Infantry, who was killed in action in France.

PICKETS WIN AT BRIDGE JOB

Strike pickets today prevailed upon carpenters and laborers, recommended by the National Relief Employment Bureau in Quincy, not to go to work on construction of the $2,000,000 Fore River bridge, where a wage-protest strike is in progress.

The unemployed carpenters and laborers reported at the bridge bearing cards signed by John H. Scott, bureau supervisor, but many refused to go to work after hearing the complaints of the strikers.

"These men signed statements in this office declaring they were informed by us that there was a labor dispute in progress on the bridge job," Scott said.

Construction of the bridge was temporarily delayed when 150 workers went on strike yesterday, claiming that the wage scale agreed upon by the New England regional labor board had been repudiated by Vincent Barletta, contractor.

PLANS AN APPEAL TO FRANCE NOT TO MAKE WAR NOW

eral staff recognized particularly the disunity of the Germans.

Hitler warded off the blow by a series of great peace speeches, the most important of which he made at the spring meeting of the Reichstag.

There the French waited so long that Hitler had the chance to consolidate his position and after his plebiscite, when 93 per cent of the Germans voted for Hitler, the French felt he was too strong to attack at home.

GERMANY SPLIT AGAIN

Now the Roehm-Von Schleicher conspiracy and his bloody suppression of that planned coup have resulted, as the French believed, in splitting German unity.

Once more conditions appear favorable to the French for an attack, or so the Germans believe.

Once more the Volkischer Beobachter, Nazi organ, sets forth the German attitude which Rudolf Hess, Hitler's deputy party leader, developed and which Hitler will enlarge upon. Says the Beobachter:

"The German people, now as before, are ready to examine any proposal, no matter whence it comes, so long as any possibility appears through such a proposal to reach an understanding on the basis of mutual respect.

DEFENSE WITH BLOOD

"The German people are equally ready to defend their honor with blood."

It is considered possible that Hitler may make France a more specific proposal than ever before to come to an understanding.

In any case he intends to try to convince the world that if war comes it will not be Germany's fault.

Not all the results of Germany's latest crisis have been bad results, either for Hitler or for Germany or for the world, and 10 days after the news of Hitler's executions shocked Europe, it is possible to draw the balance sheet considerably more accurately.

As neutral Germans see it, the principal items on the credit side are first the Storm Troopers have virtually disappeared. Their two or three million will be reduced to a maximum of 300,000, entirely disarmed.

LEADERS DISLIKED

The consequences of this event will be enormous. Hitlerites may be excused for bewilderment at the first reaction of the outside world which condemned the killings of Roehm and his confederate. It was precisely the Stormers and not particularly their brutal leaders like Roehm, Heines and Ernst whom the outside world most disliked.

However justified may be the criticism of methods used against the Stormers, the consequences of that riddance will be that Germany for the first time since Hitler came to power will have an opportunity to re-establish jurisdiction of law.

For the outside world the destruction of the powers of the Storm Troopers could have one of the most important results. Conceivably it may open the way to a permanent agreement with France. Such agreement seems very remote at this moment, but the existence of Hitler's huge brown army was always one of the principal reasons that France refused to treat with them.

On the doubt side for Hitler appears his undoubted loss of prestige among the whole population, but the critic who predicts Hitler's collapse and sees him now as merely the prisoner of the Reichswehr, overlooks one fundamental.

SYMPATHY ALIENATED

Because Hitler's first move after becoming a power was utterly to destroy all other political parties and all other leaders, he now remains as Lenin remained in Russia and Mussolini in Italy, without any competition. Whether they like it or not, the Reichswehr has to accept Hitler because he is the only politicai personage in Germany who could possibly come into question as head of the Reich.

In foreign politics Hitler's killings have alienated sympathy throughout the world, heightened for a moment tension with France, and decreased Germany's chances of regaining the Saar because the catholic population in that 80 per cent catholic territory bitterly resents the killing of catholics in Germany.

The debits of the last ten days are heavy but not all the results are in the red.

Candid Gets Shoe Styles

The candid cameraman went shoe style hunting at the Boston Shoe fair at the Statler Hotel and caught Miss Alice McSweeney of Brockton trying on the latest in evening slippers. They are one of the features at the show.

And here it is. The Scandal Sandal has arrived and Miss Estelle Barry of Medford is trying on a pair of them. They are for evening wear and, shoe dealers say, they will be the rage at dances and formal affairs this fall. (Pictures by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

Latest in Fall Shoe Styles Exhibited at Fair Here

Shoes in infinite variety, shoes for America, shoes for the whole world are on exhibition today and tomorrow at the hotels Statler and Copley Plaza during the 15th annual Boston Shoe Fair.

Over 500 manufacturers from all parts of the country are on hand with samples of the late summer, fall and winter styles, many of which will be exported to such fashion centers as London and Paris.

At this preview of fall and winter styles, it is evident that sandals, which are so very popular for both day and evening wear this season, will give way to afternoon and sport shoes of higher cut and fewer perforations but the sandal effect will be continued in modified form for evening wear with slippers having semi open toes, and cut low with wider straps.

White, the race this summer, will probably be followed by dull blacks, maroon, brown, calf and dull blues, more or less on the gray. The trend away from white and the bold Mexican color motif toward more subdued tapestry colors will let the fall shoes blend with fall furs.

One noticeable feature in all fall styles is the high built up leather heel. The expected revival of tinsel cloth in evening gowns brings with it exquisite creations in gold and silver material. There are more subdued in tone than the dazzling jeweled slippers so popular now.

BATTER DOWN JAIL DOOR TO LYNCH NEGRO

Louisiana Mob Hangs Youth Accused in Attack on Girl

Bastrop, La., July 10—A young Negro farmer lay dead in a undertaking establishment today, lynched by a mob after officers reported he had confessed an attempted attack on a prominent white girl.

Three hundred men hanged Andrew McLeod, 26, from the limb of an oak tree on the Court House square here, despite his cries and pleas for mercy.

BATTER DOWN DOORS

McLeod was accused of attempting to attack the 19-year-old girl early Sunday near Jones, La., 20 miles from here. He was arrested Sunday, and officers were preparing to file formal charges against him at the time the mob battered down the door of the small brick jail house last night and seized him.

Witnesses reported that the mob formed quietly and grew to such proportions that officers in the town were unable to halt their plans.

A telephone pole and a railroad rail were used to break down the iron doors to the small jail and to burst into the cell where the accused Negro was crouched and pleading for mercy. The mob worked without any demonstrations.

The Negro was forced to stand on the top of an automobile while the rope was fastened and then he was pushed off. The first rope broke and the victim fell to the ground. An unidentified man ran up and slashed his throat.

A stronger rope was obtained and McLeod was hanged. Then the mob dispersed.

POINTED OUT BY PRISONERS

Chief of Police B. C. Walton was reported out of town at the time of the lynching and that there was no night marshal at the jail. Two other Negro prisoners in the jail were said to have pointed out McLeod to the leaders of the mob after they gained entrance. The other prisoners were not molested.

Sheriff Fred Carpenter said he and his deputies were unable to halt the mob.

The girl told officers she was returning home from a dance late Saturday night with her escort who had been drinking when their automobile left the road and she started walking to a gasoline station up the road in search of aid when she was attacked.

Hays Ignored in N. Y. Fight

By International News Service

New York, July 10—What may eventually turn out to be the greatest concerted moral campaign in the country's history moved ahead today toward its double goal of clean motion pictures and clean stage attractions.

The fight of the religious groups against indecency in the films reached its climax yesterday when leaders of three faiths—Catholic, Protestant and Jewish—met here to formulate plans for the campaign.

Rev. Joseph A. McCaffrey, rector of Holy Cross Church, who presided at the meeting, said the clergymen had approved a plan to ignore Will Hayes, czar of the film industry, and to carry the fight against indecency direct to the producers.

Only a handful of strikers and their sympathizers were present, but 50 deputies, all armed with pick handles and tear gas bombs maintained their vigilance.

Thomas W. Holand, a representative of the Labor Compliance Board of the NRA, appeared at the farm early and immediately went into conference with Charles F. Seabrook, John A. Moffitt, Federal Meditator dispatched by Secretary of Labor, Frances Perkins, also was expected to confer with Seabrook today.

U. S.-Alaska Test Flight Postponed

Washington, July 10 (US)—The test flight of 10 secret type bombing airplanes from Washington to Alaska and return will be delayed until July 20 or later, the War Department announced here.

Original plans were for a take-off by July 15 but there has been delay in preparing bases along the way, it was said.

Pilot Killed, 3 Seriously Hurt

BARTHOU WINS PLEDGES FROM ENGLISH

Anglo-French Relations Called of Value to Peace of Europe

By Associated Press

London, July 10—Assurances of the friendliest permanent relationship between Great Britain and France were given today by acting Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, it was understood, to Louis Barthou, French foreign minister.

The formal Anglo-French conversations were concluded early this afternoon. The extent of the understanding arrived at between the two nations during two days of negotiations was still clothed in official secrecy. An official statement said:

"Friendly conversations made it possible for the two governments to clearly appreciate their respective points of view on the questions under discussion.

"These questions included French proposals for additional mutual security in Eastern Europe, the future of the disarmament conference and preparations for the 1935 naval conference."

Barthou was understood to have replied to Baldwin's assurances that never have Anglo-French relations been more cordial, of more mutual value and of more value to the peace of Europe.

In contrast to the success of negotiations on the point, there was a well-informed belief that Barthou was unable to change the British attitude toward eastern European security pacts. The British do not oppose the pacts—which the French appreciate—but they continued to maintain that such pacts are "France's babies," and Britain has no connection with them.

Whether general disarmament questions will be linked with the 1935 naval conference apparently remained undecided.

PONZI TO TAKE FIGHT TO COURT

law of deportation—and he expects to execute a couple of intricate moves before he's forced to climb the gangplank.

At his home in Somerville today Ponzi said:

"It is quite true that I am compelled to surrender to the immigration authorities here Thursday noon. At that time I shall walk in to Miss Ward and surrender myself.

"But I will be accompanied by a lawyer and immediately upon being taken into custody the lawyer will apply to the United States District Court for a writ of habeas corpus to prevent the deportation.

"I believe the case may eventually reach the United States Supreme Court and that body will decide in my favor."

BAIL MATTER UP

There is another matter which Ponzi must attend to before the deadline day. And that is bail. He said he expects to be very busy in the next day or two straightening out that matter.

So busy, in fact, that he will have little time to give interviews or even eat or sleep. He said:

"You must understand that I am confronted with no little difficulty in obtaining bail. But such things require only time and determination. I expect that by Thursday noon I shall have arranged for counsel, bail and everything else."

With such optimism and cheerfulness, Ponzi faces the gloomy prospect of departing forever.

In the meantime, the steamer Volcania will sail Sunday afternoon from Commonwealth Pier. It is probable that will carry Ponzi as a passenger. But Ponzi has hopes that she will not.

Suffolk Cities Miss Road Funds

Suffolk County communities were conspicuous by their absence today in the list of 182 towns made public as eligible for portions of the $1,378,000 road maintenance assistance fund provided by the state.

According to Commissioner of Public Works Frank E. Lyman, only those towns were to be aided that showed valuations of less than $5,000,000, and each must appropriate a sum equal to that allotted by the Commonwealth. The allotment is the same as that of 1933 as compared with $100 in 1933.

Cemetery Officer Sues on Slander

A $50,000 suit charging that Simon Cabelinsky, an officer and counsellor for Shara Tefila Congregation and the Shara Tefila Cemetery of West Roxbury, was slandered in a cemetery, is on file in Suffolk Superior Civil Court today against Jacob H. Levine of Glenway street, Dorchester.

Cabelinsky charges in the suit that while at the cemetery in the hearing on a group of people, he was slandered by words spoken by the defendant, causing him to be scorned and shunned by his friends.

GEYSER FLOODS MELROSE HOME

Tons of water from a bursting main flooded a three-story house, drove a mother and three daughters out, in the exclusive Sanford street section of Melrose today.

The break sent a 50-foot geyser into the air, after tearing up a section of the street 20 feet square. The water shot at an angle and demolished windows in the front of the home of Mrs. Mary J. Riley, mother of Patrolman William A. Riley of the Melrose police.

Miss Nellie W. Riley, teacher at the Mozart School in Roslindale, Miss Marguerite R. Riley, a Melrose teacher and Miss Mary J. Riley, all of whom made their home with their mother, were cared for at the home of neighbors, after police, firemen and waetr department employes helped them from the house.

The break in the huge main, supplying thousands of Melrose homes with drinking water from Spot Pond, left those families without water.

DOCK BATTLES LOOMING OVER NEW ENGLAND

Men at New Bedford Quit; Charlestown Heads Meet

Threats of strike violence to equal that of San Francisco hovered over the docks along New England today.

Boston longshoremen looked with interest upon a meeting scheduled at New York, in which the attitude of dockmen along the Atlantic will be determined in regard to the West Coast strike.

At New Bedford, a walkout of 75 members of the union already has taken place. Leaders of the dockmen at Providence were called into conference with the New England Regional Labor Board and considerable unrest was reported at Portland, Me.

LEADERS IN PARLEY

John J. Doolin, of Charlestown, vice-president of the International Longshoremen's Union, and Daniel J. Donovan, president of the Boston Longshoremen's District Council, were in New York today at the call of Joseph P. Ryan, general president of the union.

Meanwhile, at Washington, the new government labor board included the dock strikes and threatened dock strikes in labor problems that include the trouble among union workers in Ohio, San Francisco's dockmen, the New York poultry strikers and the Minneapolis truck drivers, all disturbances of major proportions.

LUMBER HEAD FIRM

The walkout at New Bedford tied up the unloading of the lumber steamer Walter D. Munson and drew caustic comment from Edmund Wood, president of the Green & Wood, Inc., lumber dealers. Wood said:

"This company has had an open shop for 90 years and we don't propose to change now. If necessary, we'll change the Munson boats to other ports."

New Crisis Looms in Pacific Battle

San Francisco, July 10—Another death and increasing general strike threats in three cities drew the Pacific coast maritime dispute rapidly toward a new crisis today, as a Federal board pleaded for an armistice.

Guards added the seventh victim to the death list since the strike started May 9. Steve S. Watson, 48, a special deputy sheriff, fell fatally wounded in a Seattle business district battle.

Girl to Aid Alibi in Hickman Trial

San Francisco, July 10 (AP)—Selection of a jury for the trial of Millard R. Hickman, 45, marine engineer, accused of the murder of Louise Jeppeson, 33, of Ogden, Utah, continued here today. Nine men and three women were in the jury box, but defense and prosecution still held unused peremptory challenges.

That alibi testimony of blonde Blanche McKay, 25, who claims to have been with Hickman in his room when Miss Jeppeson was strangled in Golden Gate Park, will figure prominently in the trial, was indicated by the defense.

CROCKER SNOW'S EX-WIFE AND YOUNG FLIER TO MARRY

NEWPORT RITES CLIMAX SKY ROMANCE

Pierrepont Johnson May Take Bride on Air Honeymoon

Only members of their families and intimate friends will be present when Mrs. Lilias Moriarti Snow, 23-year-old Boston society aviatrix, marries Pierrepont Edward Johnson, 22, also a Boston socialite flier, in Newport, R. I., Saturday afternoon.

This announcement came on the heels of the formal declaration that confirmed long and repeated reports of Mrs. Snow's romance with the son of Mrs. Reginald Johnson of 97 Mt. Vernon street, Beacon Hill. The ceremony will be simple. It will take place at the United Congregational church.

FRIENDLY WITH EX-MATE

Mrs. Snow's wedding plans became known by the filing of intentions in Newport. Her Reno decree from Crocker Snow of the Back Bay became final only two days before.

The Johnson romance was supposedly in the making about the same time that the Reno divorce marked the smashup of Lilias Moriarti's first marriage. That, too, was a romance of the skies as Snow was an air service lieutenant when he wooed and wed her in 1931.

Mrs. Snow and her former husband have maintained friendly relations since their divorce and there had been rumors of a reconciliation, but nothing ever came of them.

MAY FLY ON HONEYMOON

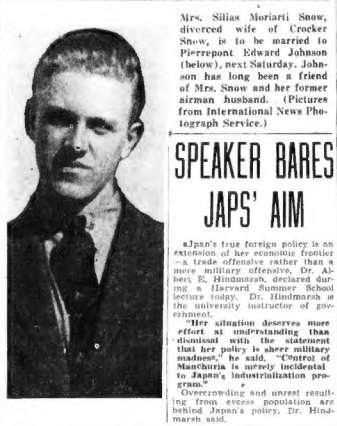
The bride-to-be is the daughter of George Andrews Moriarti, Jr., of Boston, Newport and Bristol, R. I., and the former Olga von Gimming of Hungary.

The bridegroom is formerly of Milton and is a Williams College alumnus.

They may fly on their honeymoon, returning to Newport for the tennis tournaments and the America cup races.

Finds New Sky Romance

Mrs. Silias Moriarti Snow, divorced wife of Crocker Snow, is to be married to Pierrepont Edward Johnson (below), next Saturday. Johnson has long been a friend of Mrs. Snow and her former airman husband. (Pictures from International News Photograph Service.)



WIDOW ON WAY TO FUNERAL OF "PIRATE"

Mrs. Newton Is Guarded on Drive From Farm to Cohasset

Guarded by a number of friends, Mrs. James G. Newton, widow of the 43-year-old "pirate," whose body was found in Cohasset harbor 10 days ago, came over the road from her Marlow, N. H., farm, today to look for the last time on the husband, respected in Marlow as a town official.

Funeral services were scheduled in the mortuary chapel at Forest Hills Cemetery at 3 p. m., with none but relatives to be present. Cremation will take place following the services.

Because of the attempts of the curious to visit her home in Marlow yesterday, attempts foiled when she turned "Johnny," a prize Guernsey bull, loose in the front yard, a number of friends from Springfield offered to accompany her today on the long automobile ride from her home to Cohasset.

It was in Conasset that Newton played as a boy, and where he said as a young man, explaining the secret of how a "pirate" could sail the yawl Cumberbunce II, stolen at New London, through the tortuous channel into Cohasset harbor, a route known only to the natives.

Yet so long had Newton been away from Cohasset, and so infrequent his return visits to relatives, that he went unidentified for days in his old home town and escaped burial in Potter's Field only through anxiety of the wife who bids him farewell today.

It was her letter to his relatives telling of his strange disappearance last month, just before the Harvard-Yale races, which led to the identification.

The widow and his 15-year-old stepson, Robert Clough, were to be attendants at the simple burial services. George F. Newton, Sr., father of the dead man, took charge of the funeral.

2 TRAPPED IN SUIT RACKET ON JOBLESS

Police Charge Swindle by Pair Who Posed as Employers

Unemployed men and women seeking jobs have been victimized by a new racket that police discovered by the arrest of two men who removed a dummy package from the Parker House check room.

At police headquarters today the men gave their names as Chester Gadsby, 22, of Guyette road, and Edward Lynch, 53, of Prince street, both of Cambridge.

Posing as prospective employers, the two men, according to the police, answered advertisements of men and women seeking work, and offered to hire them, providing they bought new suits.

REFUNDS THEIR PROFIT

Each applicant was instructed to purchase a suit and check it with the bill of sale at some hotel under the name of "Ryan" or "Walsh" for inspection by the "employers" and return in several hours to learn whether he or she had been given a job.

In the interval, police say, Lynch or Gadsby would call at the hotel for the package, return it to the store and obtain a refund on the bill of sale.

TRAPPED IN HOTEL

Special Officers Mahoney, Kearns and Nickerson of Milk street station glared a dummy package in the Parker House and seized the two after Lynch had passed the package to Gadsby.

Questioned at headquarters today, Gadsby, according to police, said he had met Lynch on Boston Common a week ago, when the latter explained he had a new racket which would yield a huge income. Both are charged with conspiracy to steal.

U. S. SUMMONS 15 IN BANK SUIT

Three former defendants in affairs of the closed Industrial Bank & Trust Company were called as government witnesses today against Herbert S. Mabey, Boston lawyer and financier, at his second day of trial on seven charges in connection with the bank's closing.

The three, William J. Wallace, former discount clerk at the bank; Andera C. Tellstrom, an official of the bank and Harry R. Koshner, a broker, were among 15 witnesses called by Mrs. Jennie Loitman Barron, assistant attorney general.

Mabey is charged with larceny in six of the indictments. The other charges that he wilfully used the name of H. F. Staples Company, Inc., to secure money for his own use.

Wallace testified as to details of how Mabey obtained loans on notes he signed as treasurer of the Staples Company. Wallace said he issued the notes under the direction of Charles B. Stroul, president of the bank.

SPEAKER BARES JAPS' AIM

Japan's true foreign policy is an extension of her economic frontier —a trade offensive rather than a mere military offensive, Dr. Albert E. Hindmarsh, declared during a Harvard Summer School lecture today. Dr. Hindmarsh is the university instructor of government.

"Her situation deserves more effort at understanding than dismissal with the statement that her policy is sheer military madness," he said. "Control of Manchuria is merely incidental to Japan's industrialization program."

Overcrowding and unrest resulting from excess population are behind Japan's policy, Dr. Hindmarsh said.

MAN IDENTIFIED IN GIRL ATTACK

Complaints charging a 23-year-old Roxbury clerk with statutory offenses and impersonating an officer were sought today in Roxbury District Court after the man had been picked out of a headquarters' lineup by Grace Kennedy, 13, of Humboldt avenue, Roxbury, as the one who is alleged to have kidnaped and attacked her last night.

The same man was identified by Mrs. Margaret Shearer of Holworthy street, Roxbury, as the one who called at her home last night, showed a badge and declared he was a state officer. Mrs. Shearer told police she refused to allow her 13-year-old daughter to accompany the man.

The Kennedy girl told Dudley street police the man showed her a gold badge and ordered her into his car. He attacked her when they reached a secluded spot in Forest Hills, she said.

The man was arrested a few hours later on a description furnished by the girl. Police said they found a gold fire badge bearing his initials on the suspect.

Whiskey Aged in 3 Minutes, Says Buffalo Inventor

By Associated Press

Buffalo, N. Y., July 10—Raw whiskey aged and mellowed in three minutes by a new electrical process was the goal claimed today by a Buffalo engineer, after a demonstration before scientific observers.

The process, invented by Edward Butler, mechanical engineer, consists of an electric treatment of a raw distillate and ground oak pulp from the wood in which the liquor is usually aged. No other chemical ingredients are required, and the inventor claims the process, by eliminating steps which usually take months and years to complete, will revolutionize the distilling industry.

The demonstrations of the "ageing machine" were attended by a representative of the chemistry department of the University of Buffalo and Dr. Arthur B. Adams of Pittsburgh, head chemist of the United States Bureau of Internal Revenue for more than 20 years.

BLONDE SOUGHT IN HOLDUP

Boston police were today hunting a blonde, and her male companion, whom Robert A. Spears, Milton street, Arlington, claims robbed him at gun point of $5 after he had given them a ride.

According to Spears, the couple approached him while he was purchasing gas at a station on Columbus avenue, and asked him for a lift to Dudley street. Crossing Tremont street, the man ordered Spears to hand over his money while the girl pressed a pistol against his side.

Paris, July 10—Further arrests in France's latest drive on an international spy ring were foreshadowed today by police investigators in the suburbs of Paris.

Russian Church Axeman to Die

By International News Service

Moscow, July 10—Because he attempted to convert a Communist woman to the faith of her fathers and used an axe in the process, Ivan Starostin, deacon of an Orthodox church in a village near Moscow, was sentenced to death here today.

The Soviet Society of the Godless pressed the prosecution, declaring Starostin had terrorized two women living in his house because they were unbelievers, insisting he would be justified in killing both.

Finally the deacon attacked one of the women with an axe. She is in a critical condition.

NORTON CALLS DOWD "TOOL"

City Councillor Clement Norton of Hyde Park today countered with another public letter in his battle with Acting Mayor John F. Dowd over the question of "Who Is Running the City of Boston?"

Norton's counter blow is in the nature of a challenge to Dowd to debate "anytime, any place," on the question. "Who is acting mayor of Boston during the frequent absences of Frederick W. Mansfield from this city?" Norton said:

"The enmity between Dowd and me dates back to last spring. At that time I demanded that the four horsemen, all friends of Dowd and the Mansfield administration, do something to save city employes from further layoffs and pay cuts.

"Dowd has muzzled himself for Mansfield and is only a tool in his hands."

Dancing Baroness Sues for Back Pay

Former Helen Tennyson Hales Club Owner to Court

By Universal Service

Atlantic City, N. J., July 10—The former Baroness de Werth, who twice wed the dashing young Baron Baldouin de Reinach Werth of France, twice divorced him, and later was engaged to a Cleveland millionaire, is broke.

This was revealed as she signed a court complaint here against Detective Captain Frank Ferretti for $845, claiming the amount represented unpaid wages for her work as entertainer in the night club Ferretti operated in his wife's name.

She told the clerk of the court Ferretti promised $10 a week for talking, drinking and dancing with the patrons, but paid only in part. Hearing is set for tomorrow, before Judge Lindley W. Jeffers.

The complainant was born Helen Tennyson of Pittsburgh. As a Red Cross worker in Washington, in 1916, she met Baron de Werth, stationed there as an army interpreter. Their marriages and divorces and her futile effort to regain their baby daughter, held public interest off and on more than 14 years.

Ferretti is a district leader in Atlantic City politics.

lover, and there is no doubt about it. But a woman gets fed up on love-making. She doesn't want it all the time. Don't marry a Frenchman if you want to be happy."

It was rumored about that time, which was in 1927, that the ex-baroness would step into the double-hitch with an attractive English nobleman who had paid court to her, but the match never came off.

Baron de Werth was supposed to have made application to the Rota tribunal in the Vatican for an annulment that would permit him to remarry, but nothing much ever came of it as far as is known.

Union Protests Fire Hose Award

The Mechanical Rubber Workers' Union today protested to Mayor Mansfield and the City Council the award of a contract for fire hose to a Connecticut company. The protest is contained in a letter signed by William P. Garrett, secretary, who pointed out the bids were identical. He wrote:

"Forty men in the hose department of the Boston Woven Hose Company will be laid off because the contrac. has been awarded outside the state."

THREAT TO TELL BARED IN SUIT

Nantucket, July 10—"If you don't give me the money, I will go about saying that you have been my mistress."

That statement by Monell Sayre, nationally known Episcopal layman, broke up their 29 years of friendship and brought Sayre "boxed ears, good and plenty," according to testimony of Mrs. Anastasia Pitts in defense of Sayre's suit for return of $40,000 in bonds.

Mrs. Pitts claimed that Sayre gave her the bonds in recognition of her service as housekeeper. Sayre maintained there had been no such arrangement.

Under questioning of her attorney, Judge George M. Poland, Mrs. Pitts readily told of boxing the churchman's ears and gave numerous other details that startled the audience in the small courtroom here.

Sayre denied the statements credited to him in testimony of Mrs. Pitts. He testified most of the time with his eyes filled with tears.

After hearing closing arguments, Judge Louis S. Cox took the case under advisement.

REDS PLOTTED DOCK STRIKE CONTROL

In the following article, Robert Matthews tells how Communist propagandists made capital out of the recent bloody rioting at Toledo, how they are capitalizing the present bloodshed in San Francisco, how they greeted the arrival of the U. S. Fleet in New York as an opportunity to find recruits in the Red cause among the 35,000 officers and men in the Navy.

BY ROBERT MATTHEWS

Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service, Inc.

New York, July 10—Communist leaders undoubtedly have been important factors in the San Francisco marine strike, in which national guardsmen have fired their first shots.

New York Communists claim that the San Francisco strike, which has tied up coast shipping for some time, is likely to assume large significance in labor strife history.

Regular unionism, it is said, is strongly sympathetic with the marine strike on the coast, and sympathetic strikes to follow will undoubtedly be based by labor agitators on the hypothesis that unionism itself is at stake.

BALKED BY PLOTTERS

It is on this point that the Communist agitators,—not known by fellow strikers as outand-out Reds—base their hopes, and it was on this point that they attempted to seize control of the longshoremen's strike in the early stages.

When Joseph P. Ryan, head of the A. F. of L. longshoremen's union, negotiated a preliminary settlement of the strike, communists in the rank-and-file committees repudiated it.

The reds sought for control in two ways—through their own marine workers' industrial union; and by trying to undermine Ryan, wooing away his followers through establishment of "rank-and-file committees" formed by communists.

LURE FOR GUARDSMEN

When Governor White of Ohio ordered the national guard into Toledo, members of the Young Communist League harangued the guardsmen and gave them printed propaganda. The Daily Worker, newspaper published by the Communist party, printed a special edition with glaring headlines that shouted:

"Guardsmen, don't shoot your fellow workers!"

This issue was distributed among the guardsmen. Communists insist they made a number of recruits among the guardsmen and that many of them refused to fire on the strikers as a result.

many produce that constitutes wealth. The founder of Christianity said:

"Go and sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven."

He did not say: "Take away all they have and diffuse it." But there is always room for improvement. He might say that now, and help to "tread on more toes."

The maritime strike on the Pacific coast causes anxiety among all wise men, in and out of labor ranks. For three months, the strike has cost at least one million dollars a day, a loss that will not be made up. The country may be compelled, among its other activities, to invent some substitute for miniature civil wars, in the management of industry and commerce, and enforce the substitute against all concerned.

Chancellor Hitler might learn wisdom from a brother dictator, Mustapha Kemal, ruler of Turkey. Yesterday he ordered the suspension of a district governor in the Adrianople area, and impeachment of officials under him for persecution of Jews, and announced similar action to be taken at Smyrna and elsewhere in the Dardanelles. Jewish families, driven from their homes, will be returned and protected by Kemal, who, apparently combines some knowledge of history with a sense of justice.

Congratulate Mussolini. "Dressed in boots, old trousers and a blue sweater," yesterday he was helping Italian workers to harvest crops on the Pontine marshes, changed by him from fever breeding swamps into fertile, dry ground.

Mussolini and modern machinery did it, where former rulers had tried and failed.

Gems Still Without Guard

Shipments of new gems arriving at Hodgson, Kennard Co., and still without guards, stirred the ire of police in that section. Cases of jewels were brought to replace the loot, valued at $211,000, stolen in the robbery there last week. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

NEW GEM CLUE FOUND

found in Everett, and the car found abandoned in Lynn, on the afternoon of the crime, were the cars in which the gunmen made their getaway.

A chauffeur's cap and a powder puff were among articles found in the car seized at Everett. These will be inspected today by the Gloucester detectives and Formes, investigating agent for the insurance companies.

PLATES TRACED

The plates on the car abandoned in Everett were traced to the Robertson Motor Car Co., of Taunton. A salesman of the firm told police he left the plates on an office desk about two weeks ago, and when he missed them the next day thought another salesman had taken them.

For this reason the theft was not reported at once. Employes of the automobile firm could provide no clue to the identity of those who stole the plates, but police were of the opinion that it may have been the work of Providence men. Providence is only a 30-minute drive from Taunton.

The total cost value of the jewelry stolen from the Hodgson-Kennard store was $220,564, it was determined upon completion of an insurance inventory by John Hopkins, public accountant, today.

NINE FIRMS LOSE

Of this amount, jewelry that cost $155,093.64, was the property of Hodgson-Kennard & Co., Inc., of Boston, and $75,803 was the value of property owned by nine other jewelry firms, and sent "on memorandum" to the Magnolia store for commission sale.

A $12,000 bracelet on memorandum from Milton S. Meyer Co., New York, was the most costly single piece of loot. The least precious was a $40 wristwatch. The loot included 114 rings, 52 brooches, 35 bracelets, 10 bar pins, five pairs of eardrops, two hat ornaments, two clip brooches, 19 pendants, 11 necklaces and seven wristwatches.

Ratzkoff Bros., Boston; J. & S. DeYoung, Boston; Meyer, Concord Watch Co. Movado Watch, Inc., Warner Bros., Goodfriend Bros. Sins & Co., and J. & L. Hartzberg all of New York, were the firms that had jewelry on memorandum at the Magnolia store. J. & S. DeYoung with $20,000, Meyer with $27,000, and Goodfriend with $25,000 were the heaviest outside losers.

For a reason they did not make public, officials working on the case said they would confer with Capt. Stephen J. Flaherty, Boston detective bureau head. There were many more or less intangible clues which did not promise much.

The first was an underworld tip that the stolen jewels were taken to Providence after the robbery and turned over to a "fence" within five hours.

The second was suspicion cast toward a Gloucester man, now unaware that he is being watched by strongly suspected of aiding the five bandits who made the actual haul.

STATE MEN STEP IN

For the first time, State Detectives John Stokes and Joseph Ferrari, who won a large share of credit in the recent conviction of the Millen brothers and Abe Fabe for murder and robbery of the Needham Trust Company, entered the Magnolia case today.

They conferred at length with State Detective William F. Murray of Lynn, in whose district the record-breaking robbery was enacted.

MAINE TO FIGHT FOR ROUGE LAW

By Associated Press

Augusta, Me., July 10—"Vigorous" defense of Maine's new cosmetics law, which has been attacked as unconstitutional, was promised today by Atty.-Gen. Clyde R. Chapman.

Enforcement of the 10 day old statute, designed as a health protective and revenue producing measure, was halted yesterday by a federal court restraining order, issued in Portland and hearing was tentatively set for July 17 at the behest of the Liggett Drug Co.

Atty.-Gen. Chapman was named a defendant in the Liggett action.

"I feel it is my duty to vigorously endeavor to defend any law passed by the Legislature," he said today.

LICENSE IS LOST IN PLEA DRIVE

To make a plea for restoration of his auto driving license, which had been suspended, Joseph P. Guilfoyle, of Bruce street, Dorchester, drove his car to a conference with a motor vehicle inspector at Dorchester courthouse today.

This mistake not only cost him whatever chance he had of getting the license back now, but also $50, amount of a fine assessed when the inspector, John Dwyer, immediately put him into court for driving after revocation of his license.

Guilfoyle had conferred with Dwyer and requested return of his license. They had an affable conversation. When Guilfoyle left, Dwyer trailed him and saw him drive away, he testified. He overhauled and arrested him.

THIEVES END LEITER FETE

A fashionable dinner party at the palatial Beverly Farms estate of Mrs. Juliette Leiter, widow of Joseph G. Leiter, millionaire Chicago capitalist, broke up in confusion this morning when thieves stole a quantity of silverware.

But worse than that, the silver did not belong to Mrs. Leiter, but had been borrowed for the occasion from her equally wealthy friend, Mrs. Anna Allan, widow of the late Bryce J. Allen of Beacon street and Beverly.

The stolen silver valued at several hundred dollars, was reposing in the Leiter limousine preparatory to being returned to Mrs. Allan. Inside the house nearly 50 guests, representing the upper stratum of North Shore society were dancing or playing bridge.

The thieves entered the limousine and removed the silver which had been tied up in neat packages. The loot included eight salt spoons, several pepper shakers and a number of glass lined salt shakers. All bore the crest of the Allan family.

BAN ON 'SHRINE' IS IGNORED

a time in fear the floor may have sagged under yesterday's crowd.

Afflicted men and women and crippled youths and mothers with maimed children eagerly climbed to the second floor "spare bedroom," where the outline made its appearance in the wall ten days ago.

Many of these kneeled and prayed, lighted candles, passed their hands across the outline. Many, according to Mrs. Gaumond, claimed to be improved in health. one elderly woman left in ecstasy and fervent thankfulness, saying she had been greatly benefited.

Except for the cure-seekers, Mrs. Gaumond was alone in her Pleasant street home today. Her husband was at his work in a local mill. They have no children.

Explaining her belief that the wall figure is really a miracle image and her reason for keeping the "shrine" open despite the ban, Mrs. Gaumond said she had prayed that a nephew, Eugene Dumas of Worcester, might be allowed to resume his study for the priesthood which he abandoned because of necessity to provide for the welfare of nine fatherless brothers and sisters.

After relinquishing his studies at St. Hyacinth, Quebec, her nephew took a $4-a-week job to aid his family. Mrs. Gaumond has sometimes conducted whist parties in her home to help her relatives, she said.

Monsignor Desrochers advised the Gaumonds to close their "shrine" after his visit to the home which followed an inspection of Lourdes by two of his curates, Rev. Fathers, Wilfred J. Racizot and J. E. Parisien.

The curates were not convinced of miraculous origin and finally the monsignor decided to see for himself.

His decision, kindly but firm, was announced while hundreds crowded the street outside the home awaiting their turn. Many waiting to get in wept in disappointment. Others left resignedly and quickly. Some were hard to turn away, begging permission to enter the home on the chance the churchman might be mistaken.

Gun Fight Starts Dillinger Search

Fond Du Lac, Wis., July 10 (AP)—A wild gun battle between deputy sheriffs and a band of gunmen led to rumors John Dillinger was on another rampage, and sent Wisconsin peace officers on an extensive manhunt today. One of the gunmen was believed to have been wounded.

The fight, which occurred on a highway near here yesterday, left a maze of conflicting details, but no tangible evidence that the elusive Indiana bad man was involved.

Why does Croft outsell

every other ale in America?

The popularity of Croft Ale is based on one thing—the determination of Croft to sell nothing but a full-bodied, mellow ale made of the finest ingredients.

When the demand has exceeded the supply—as it has most of the time—we have put dealers on a "quota" system rather than reduce Croft quality.

The result is, Croft has become the most popular ale made in this country. Boston itself drinks three times as much Croft as any other kind of ale. If you want the fullest enjoyment from a glass of ale—make it Croft!

CLUBS APPROVE HEARST CLEAN FILM DRIVE

The elimination of immoral pictures and the support of clean films, assoulined in an editorial by William Randolph Hearst, was endorsed today by several leading organizations in the educational and civic life of Boston.

The Twentieth Century Club, Women's Municipal League of Boston and the Massachusetts Civic League, while taking no definite action because of the summer season, all expressed their approval of the editorial and its expression to end the films of sordid and salacious matter.

Mrs. Henry D. Tudor, president of the Women's Municipal League said:

"Mr. Hearst's idea is a splendid one. Our organization for some time has had the welfare of the children of the city at heart. Mr. Hearst's editorial in seeking to have barred from the films all immoral matter, will be received by all as a genuine move for clean motion pictures.

"I have from time to time discussed this phase of motion pictures with members of the organization and I feel sure that at the fall meeting of our organization, action along the lines advocated by Mr. Hearst will be adopted."

The Twentieth Century Club's committee on motion picture also joins with approval of the editorial. The committee is headed by Rev. Dr. E. Talmadge Boof, former general secretary of the Massachusetts Federation of Churches.

Harold P. Whitney, secretary of the club said:

"You may say that the motion picture committee of the club endorses fully the editorial of Mr. Hearst."

Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, of Brookline said:

"The editorial written by Mr. Hearst is excellent. Mr. Hearst realizes and appreciates the real value of keeping the motion pictures clean.

"His editorial is strong and emphatic."

Jeremiah McGillicuddy, Jr., three, and his young cousin, Rose, spent an hour at the Dudley street police station, before claimed by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah McGillicuddy, of Thornton street, Roxbury. The children were found sleeping on Washington street, near to Dudley street terminal. At the station police were unable to learn the mental arrival of their frantic parents.

French Senator Faces Charges

Paris, July 10 (INS)—Senator Rene Renoult, who has served in several French Cabinet posts, and who admitted in the Stavisky investigation that he accepted $3000 from the late Alexander Stavisky eight years ago, was indicted today on a charge of trafficking his political influence.

Cleanup Campaign of Films Is Pushed by 'Czar' Hays

By International News Service

Hollywood, July 10—Will Hays, movie "czar," today took over the generalship of Hollywood's "cleanup campaign" and announced that the only answer to the rising tide of criticism of unclean movies must rest with the quality of the screen product itself.

Hays refused to comment on virtual demands of New York churchmen that he resign, but a member of his organization asserted that his "position is stronger than ever."

Hays, head of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors association, denied that his flying visit to Hollywood was prompted by the interdenominational protests of Catholics, Protestants and Jews against unclean films.

TENSE AIR

There was, however, a tense air in Hollywood as he planned into the series of conferences that are expected to evolve the details of the self-imposed censorship by which the movies hope to answer nation-wide criticism. Hayes in a formal statement said:

"There is but one answer and one answer only to reasonable objections to pictures, and that is the pictures themselves.

"The solution of the problem of the right kind of screen entertainment rests solely with the quality of the product."

It was made plain that with the arrival of Hays, all official decisions regarding the campaign to purify films would emanate from his office.

Studio heads themselves refused comemnt, save for Harry Cohn, president of Columbia Pictures, Corp., who said:

"I have two small nieces, aged 12 and 14. I take them to see all of our pictures at the first showing. Our pictures must be clean for those children—and everybody else's children!"

Unclean pictures, said Cohn, make very little money. He added:

"It is much more difficult to make clean pictures. There is no difficulty involved in surprising an audience with something risque or salacious."

PLANS READY

By the end of this week, details of the plan under which every Hollywood film must be personally approved by Joseph I. Breen, first assistant to Hays, are expected to be ironed out. Each accepted picture must carry a "certificate of purity," and there can be no appeal from Breen's decision save to the full board of directors of the Hays organization.

It was recalled that Hays, former national chairman of the Republican party and former Postmaster-General, was summoned to head the organization of film studios in 1922 in answer to strong criticism at that time of indecent pictures.

Historical subjects, adventurem historical subjects, adventure films and outdoor dramas are finding a high place in production schedules, replacing sexy films, which caused the unified church protests.

From Paramount Studios came word that three more weeks will be required to whip Mae West's new picture, originally titled "It Ain't No Sin," into shape, following the protests of the New York Board of Censors.

TITLE CHANGED

John Hammed, Paramount censorship editor, has arrived here from the East to take charge of the changes. He said:

"Paramount and Miss West will meet the suggestions made by the New York board before the picture again leaves the studio."

"The Belle of New Orleans" has been selected as the title for the West picture. The title was one of the stumbling blocks presented by objection to the film, and at one time it was said that studio executives were so desperate they were ready to call it "Mae West's new picture."

THOMAS FLAYS BANK CHIEF

By International News Service

Washington, July 10—Senator Elmer Thomas' bristling cablegram to George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, who, with other American bankers, is conferring with the bank for international settlements, brought quick denials from the Federal Reserve board, and from State and Treasury department sources today, that Harrison has authority to propose or promote stabilization of the dollar.

The Oklahoma Democrat and leader of the Senate Silver Bloc, asserted he had been informed Harrison and other American bankers were conferring at the bank in Basle, Switzerland, with a view to stabilizing the dollar with England's pound, or entering an agreement to tie the dollar to a fixed weight in gold. Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, is also attending the Basle parley.

SHEPARDS OPEN BABY SHOP

The opening of a new and complete shop for infants was announced today by the Shepard Stores. The entire seventh floor of the store has been remodeled to provide for the modern shop for babies and children up to six years. Fairyland castles and characters from children's story books are used for special decorations and make a wonderland of the entire floor.

A complete shop for children's shoes is included in the new arrangement. Special sections have been included for layette selection and children's gift selections.

The new Shepard shop is reached quickly by three elevators. Its location on the seventh floor makes color selection possible under conditions of natural daylight.

YD STUDIES NEW WAR WEAPONS

Fort Devens, July 10—New methods of warfare were introduced to members of the Yankee Division today as they swung into their third day of a 15-day tour of duty.

In other sections of this training area some 800 members of the Citizens Military Training Camps and the Reserve Officers Training Corps, also made things lively in their study of fighting tactics.

One of the more interesting experiments to the YD units was a demonstration of a new idea in chemical warfare, a 4.2 gas gun shown by Lieutenant-Colonel Roland Choate of the chemical warfare division.

Colonel William J. Blake also presented a number of new ideas with his opening of the intelligence school and Lieutenant-Colonel Louis Boutwell of the 26th aviation division experimented before his charges with short wave radio and new methods of camouflage.

The 101st Infantry, "Boston's Own," spent the day at the rifle range while others concentrated on the demonstration planned for Friday when members of the Legislature and their families will be guests of the division.

The C. M. T. C. units confined themselves to close order drill and instruction in rifle and sabre. Two of the companies were taken to Mirror Lake for swimming tests in which all members must qualify in a 100-yard swim through deep water or face the requirement of compulsory swimming as part of their athletic program. Numerous lifeguards were placed along the course to guard against mishap.

Orleans Aflame, Calls Paris Help

Orleans, France, July 10 (U'S)—Fire which broke out in an apartment house and spread rapidly threatened to destroy this city. Urgent appeals were sent to Paris when local facilities aid.

The apartment house was gutted soon after the flames were discovered. The local fire department was unable to control the blaze.

BROOKLINE FACES LICENSE CUT

Sometime between now and July 23, Brookline selectmen will make up their minds as to whether the fruits of repeal may be enjoyed up to 2 a. m. daily, or whether curfew will go on at 1 o'clock.

Present regulations allow the ex-1a hour, but after a meeting of the selectmen it was learned that the change is contemplated because of complaints that persons from other cities are making noisy rendezvous of Brookline "pubs."

Mrs. Mary H. Dunlap, of Beacon street, Brookline, said that the clamor of automobiles and the laughs of visitors at a nearby restaurant kept her awake.

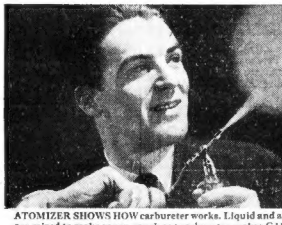
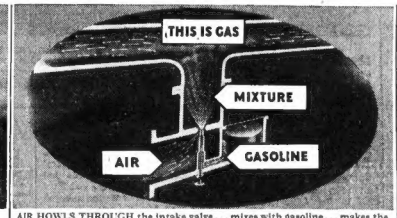
WHAT HAPPENS WHEN YOU "Step on the Gas"

This Advertisement tells how Gasoline and AIR are Mixed to Run your Car!

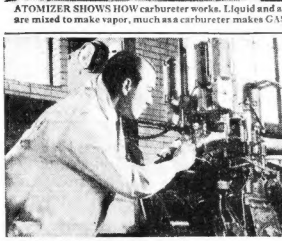


ATOMIZER SHOWS HOW carburetor works. Liquid and air are mixed to make vapor, much as a carburetor makes GAS.



AIR HOWLS THROUGH the intake valve . . . mixes with gasoline . . . makes the "gas" which gives your car its power to run. This takes place continuously.

UNDER A PARCHING SUN! This car is inhaling hot, dry air. Tonight, air may be damp and cold, affecting "gas."



CONTROLLED BY TEST! Socony-Vacuum engineers constantly test Mobilgas to make sure it mixes better with air.

WHAT REALLY HAPPENS when you step on the "gas"?

A valve opens. Liquid gasoline spurts in. Air rushes to the carbureter. And in a flashing second . . . powerful GAS is formed. In an instant, this gas is fed to cylinders. Spark plugs fire . . . the gas explodes . . . and thus is born the power that runs your car.

This factor of AIR is important for two reasons. In the first place, the weather is constantly changing—day to day—even hour to hour.

Secondly, all types of gasoline do not mix equally well with all kinds of air. So when the weather changes, you are likely to lose power, have trouble starting, or lack pick-up.

That's why Socony Mobilgas has Climatic Control. This gasoline is preadjusted at the refinery to mix better with air. The result is the kind of performance you want—regardless of the weather!

Try Socony Mobilgas. Look for the sign of the Flying Red Horse.

LOOK FOR THE Flying Red Horse! It shows where to buy Mobilgas, the fuel that lets you forget about the weather.

HARRIET BLAKE

On our first appearance at the Playhouse this season, we were pleased to note the tasteful redecoration of the interior in the soft beige tones, with green and brown draperies in the windows. The seats, too, had been raised which very much enhanced the acoustic qualities. In the lobby, colorful prints and etchings were hung in exhibition and during the intermission coffee was served . . . it was very simple, and enjoyable, like a meeting-house which it used to be back in the good old days.

Many of the young group were noted in the throng . . . we glimpsed the two Fitch sisters, Barbara and Helen, attending with Louise MacMillan, bewitchingly frocked in light evening dresses. Miss Helen, who has been an honor student at Vassar College, wore a chartreuse yellow crepe with hunter's green velvet wrap . . . Miss Barbara was demure in brown organdy with large white collar and Miss MacMillan wore a fascinating combination of iridescent green under a mole-brown velvet wrap . . .

Jane Megrew in pink flowered crepe attended with a party of five and Harriet Blake was smart in black and white checkered organza worn under a black taffeta wrap . . .

Very feminine was Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, Jr., in blush pink satin and Ada Dewson wore a beautifully cut turquoise blue crepe with braided self-toned bands for trimming . . .

FAMOUS CRONIES MEET IN BAY STATE RADIO RALLY

No. Brookfield Honors Cohan and Mack

By N. F. T.

Late afternoon has the edge on this evening in my estimation of scheduled radio goings on. Listeners in the vicinity of a dial at 3:30 can catch an unusual airing (WEEI), due to originate at that time in the not very large, but ever bustling community of North Brookfield, Mass., Connie Mack, venerable baseball boss over the Philadelphia Athletics, is guest of honor with George M. Cohan, celebrated stage star and playwright.

It seems the Philly nine, managed by Mack, is appearing in North Brookfield, crossing bats today with the local tossers. All of which is in honor of the 70-year-old leader reaching his 50th anniversary as a baseball pastimer. North Brookfield is where Connie first caught the bug. George M. Cohan was very much in man about town there in those days, Moreover, the two were fast friends. Today they relive their youth in the same setting, allowing for progressive town changes made, of course. Coast to coast network facilities of the NBC are installed to relay most of the proceedings.

Connie Mack

SKETCHES SWITCH

Those vivid rural sketches (WEEI) usually heard Monday evenings have shifted over to a new Tuesday night spot at 9:30, from where they carry on. Incidentally, these "Snow Village" half-hour bits are now moving along in the seventh year. They perhaps rate being labeled the "Abie's Irish Rose" of radioland productions.

Several years ago there was an impressive "mike" series known as "The House By the Side of the Road" dealing with rich philosophy. It's good to be advised that the same quarter hour turn is coming back as of tonight (WNAC) come 7:15, where the rather monotonous "Just Plain Bill" broadcast has been holding forth.

TWICE FOR TWINS

Juvinile followers of the weekly "Secret Agent X-9" period (WAAB) at 6:30 on Tuesdays, have urged a return engagement of the 15-year-old Slezinger Twins, John and Herbert, of Everett. Thus and so when the Chief talks to his Boston American "Secret Agent X-9" members tonight, he will likewise have them contributing harmony, with dainty Ruth Hanson at the piano.

Victor Herbert's operetta "Mlle. Modiste" occupies the Gladys Swarthout sixty minute recital tonight (WEEI) meaning between 10 and 11 o'clock.

You Hear Her on the Radio

Leah Ray

A Virginia ray of sunshine now brightening California . . . That's Leah Ray, hailing originally from Norfolk . . . Leah left nie Virginny when a lass, to visit West Coast relatives . . . Leah is just 21 now and her migration was at 17 . . . Touring the studios, her dimples promptly attracted movie moguls, as dimples will . . . Her only previous professional fling was through the WTAR waves back home . . . Her beauty won a place in the cast of a Maurice Chevalier picture . . . then came more filming of her striking features . . . Also loomed radio work. . . . Phil Harris the band boss, spotted her at Coconaut Grove, the merrymaking mart of Hollywoodites. Since then Leah has been lending her voice to the gaudmaking of Harris and his men and is one of the first rate coast to coast personalities . . . Movies no doubt hold a lure to do soupersperts, . . . Only one gal in America is an Alpha Tau Omega fraternity fellow, that's Leah Ray . . . How she pines her ATO pin!

. . . Shoulder brown tresses frame her fascinating face . . . Deep dimples are much in evidence . . . Phil Harris has nicknamed her "Dimples from Dixie" . . . Scales register 123 with Leah on the platform . . . Her preference at play is tennis. If the opponent be a peppy racquet wielder . . . Swimming holds equal enjoyment, but scouting for the latest and most tuneful popular songs to sing is her paramount pastime . . . Her broad Southern drawl causes everyone to wish she would keep talking. Said accent vanishes almost completely when she sings . . . Exactly 5 feet 6 inches covers her perpendicular measurements . . . Blondes' have no easy time being preferred by gentlemen when Leah Ray happens among those present. (Tomorrow's Radio Personality Portrait will be that of Ruth Clark, the versatile Boston boy who makes the local ether waves vibrate when he sings.)

Liming Warns of High State Costs

Conservative management has placed Massachusetts high in the ranks of states whose finances are in excellent condition, M. D. Liming, general secretary of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, declared today in an address to the Cambridge Industrial Association.

He said:

"The state cannot coast along carelessly. The past year we have witnessed a trend toward extravagance in the legislature. We have been lulled into indifference toward the financial affairs of the state government and that is an unhealthy condition."

Police 4-Platoon Plan in Suspense

Augustus Gill, secretary to Police Commissioner Hultman, announced today the proposed four-platoon system, requiring night work for day and visa-versa, was still only an idea and that no definite action had been taken. Day men were worrying about the idea of having to work nights, while a few night men were protesting the possibility of sunshine duty. Only those night men who are pleased at the prospect of some day duty, were supporting the plan.

Fearing a Temperamental Outburst From Dicky Because of Her Ride With Major Grantland, Madge Enlists Lillian's Aid

CHAPTER 84

I NEED NOT have worried about Hugh's reaction to my telephone conversation with Philip Veritzen. The sibilant breath that had escaped him at my touch of raillery in speaking to the great producer remained the only surface indication of the jealous disquiet which I knew was his. When I rose from the chair by the telephone, he was at my side with his usual careful courtesy.

"I suppose there is no use asking you to stay longer," he said, "if you are to be home within ten minutes."

"No, I must go at once, I said a bit nervously.

"You ought not to drive alone with that ankle."

"What nonsense! That little distance! I shall be perfectly all right."

PROOF OF HUGH'S DEVOTION

"I yield for the moment," he told me, and I wondered what he meant by the odd phrasing. I did not find out until I was driving rapidly down the road toward home, when a glance in my mirror showed me Hugh in a roadster following me, keeping as far away as possible without not losing sight of me.

I did not know whether to be angry or grateful for this care but when as I neared my own gate another glance into the mirror showed me that Hugh was in the act of turning his car back toward the Larches, gratitude prevailed. He had not exposed me to the curiosity and criticism of my mother-in-law by escorting me to the gate, and he had been a protection in case of possible accident. It was only another proof of Hugh's ever hovering care for me, I told myself and I did not try to smother the little rush of warmth to my heart at the thought.

The farm was much as I had left it. The decorations perhaps were a little more advanced, while the decorators appeared to have amicably settled their difficulties. In fact, Lillian and Harry Underwood were the only two adults left, Dicky not having returned, for which I was thankful. It gave me a chance to prepare for what I feared might be a trying hour with my temperamental husband.

THE BOYS AT WORK

Junior and Roderick were registering extreme busts and industry, however, scuttling about as excitedly as ants and vociferously demanding advice and admiring comment upon the festoon of laurel for the stairway, which they were twining together under Lillian's watchful eye.

"Oh, Mums! Oh, Auntie Madge! Look at me!" The two boyish voices rose simultaneously, as my young son and Dicky's orphaned youngest nephew, being reared as brothers, dashed across the room at my entrance, dragging lengths of twining laurel and oak leaves behind them.

"How often have I— I began mechanically, but stopped short. The boys' faces were so aglow with pride in their handiwork that I was glad they did not hear my tentative rebuke, which I quickly changed to an admiring "How beautiful this is! You boys must have been working hard!"

ENLISTING LILLIAN'S AID

"And how!" Junior swaggered, with Roderick echoing his words.

"And how that stair rope will look after it's been dragged all over this house!" Lillian interrupted, sending the words with a warning smile. "Come back here, you young rascals, and let's get this finished. Hurry, please be an angel and measure it again, to see how much more we have to make."

She finished the sentence thus abruptly. I knew, in obedience to the little private signal I had given her. When her big husband comprehensively had marshaled the two youngsters into the hall again, she came over to me and we slipped unobtrusively into the library.

"What's up? Need the shock troops?"

"Yes, I do, badly," I answered, smiling ruefully. "Where is Mother Graham?"

"In the nursery, I think, just now, giving Katrina some sage advice as to the proper method of bringing up Baby Faith."

A CALL FROM VERITZEN

"She'll be safe for a minute or two, then," I said thankfully. "She could not see or hear the car come in from that side of the house. But you will have to be ready to help me out, Philip Veritzen is going to telephone in a minute or two, and I'm going to be very much surprised, and ask him to come to dinner. If Mother Graham is around, do use your Machiavellian arts to make her believe that she is inspiring if not suggesting the invitation."

"Just like that!" Lillian mocked airily. "I'll do my best, however. But tell me what happened while you were gone, or I'll be as dead as the well-known cat. Curiosity, you know, was the first contributing cause in that tragedy."

I told her, briefly, swiftly, of my telephone interview with Avis Arlen and my trip to see her at Patchogue. I had scarcely finished, omitting any mention of my encounter with Dicky, when the telephone rang. I rushed to the phone in the lower hall, waving Katy back, and heard Philip Veritzen's suave "Is this Mrs. Graham?" and my mother-in-law's clipped response:

"This is Mrs. Graham, Senior. Mrs. Richard Graham is not here. What is it, please?"

RICH CREAM GIVES VELVETY TEXTURE TO DRY SKIN IN TEN MINUTES

Sea-Foam at the Throat

IT IS as delicately white, fragile and wind-blown as foam on the crest of a breaking wave, the hand-crocheted lace of this jabot. If you're a trifle tired of the severe lines of pique or linen on your pastel frocks, charge the neckline with a gay feminine spirit by using this frothy jabot. You may have directions for crocheting the Sea-foam lace jabot simply by writing to Annice Brink, Boston Evening American, and inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Obligatory Finesse Fulfills Contract Despite Losses

By Josephine Culbertson

The Obligatory Finesse is a very common and simple play and one which must be used quite frequently. There is nothing complicated or very advanced or very mysterious about this finesse—it is merely a matter of a Declarer playing for his only winning possibility. A little preliminary counting is necessary to decide how the finesse shall be taken, but this counting can be done very easily by any astute Declarer. A very sound example of the use of the Obligatory Finesse occurred in the following hand:

East, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1♡	2♣ (1)	3♡	Pass
3 N T (2)	Pass	4♡ (3)	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) A very sound overcall.

(2) With a balanced hand, including two club stoppers, East decides to bid three notrump rather than four hearts.

(3) With a 4-4-4-1 distribution, including a singleton club, West naturally returns to four hearts. There can never be any danger in playing a hand at a suit when the partnership has eight trumps divided four and four.

In the play of this hand East, the Declarer, received several disappointing blows. The normal opening of a club was made and East then proceededto lose both the spade and heart finesses, and two of his chances of fulfilling the contract were gone. East immediately saw that if he was to make four hearts he could afford to lose no more than one trick in the diamond suit.

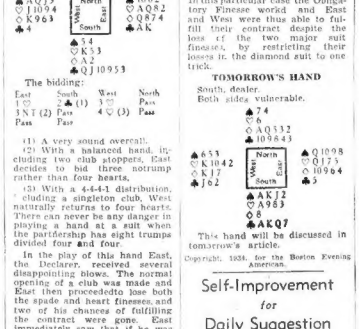
He knew that with only five diamonds missing there was a good chance that either the North or South player held the diamond Ace only singly guarded. If this was not the case, the contract could not be fulfilled anyway, except in the improbable event that either opponent held the Jack-ten alone, so East naturally decided to play for it.

From the bidding the South player seemed clearly marked with the diamond Ace because without it he would have been too weak to overcall. East accordingly led a diamond from his own hand up to the King in Dummy and when South ducked West's King won the trick. Now a diamond was led back from Dummy towards the Declarer's Queen and, even though North played a forcing honor, East ducked. This is what is known as the Obligatory Finesse. East knew he could not gain anything by going up with the Queen, as South was definitely marked with the Ace.

He therefore played low in the hope that South at that point held the lone Ace and would be forced to play that card regardless of what card East played. In this particular case the Obligatory Finesse worked and East and West were thus able to fulfill their contract despite the loss of the two major suit finesses, by restricting their losses to the diamond suit to one trick.

TOMORROW'S HAND

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



This hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Self-Improvement for Daily Suggestion

Good form demands that you tell a white lie in some situations. If you are introduced by your hostess to a person whom she says you have met before, don't contradict her even though you are certain that that person is a stranger. Never be rude enough to imply that he or she made no impression on you.

Pin-Money Buys Gay Holiday Clothes

By Dorothy Roe

(Authentic last minute fashions from New York—the style center of America.)

NOW THAT cartoonists have started their annual pictures of the ol' swimmin' hole, it seems to be time to get together a working chart of the vacation wardrobe.

You may assemble your going-away clothes for less money than ever this year, in spite of the rising market.

The big point is to do away with non-essentials, and that is the theme of the following list of things-you-must-have.

The vacation wardrobe, like all Gaul, is divided in three parts —sports clothes, beach cloth's and evening clothes. You don't need any trailing afternoon gowns, or dressy daytime things. For simplicity is the keynote of the smart wardrobe this summer.

FOUR PIECE RIG

First and Indispensable is the all-purpose sports ensemble that has taken our best resorts by storm. It is the four-piece linen or crash costume that combines skirt, jacket, blouse and shorts.

The smartest is in natural linen of rough weave, has a skirt that buttons all the way down the front, a jacket on the windbreaker style that fastens in a wide band at the waist, a halter neck blouse of vivid printed linen, and shorts to match the suit. It may be bought at any good specialty shop or department store for around $15, and is the costume which will prove the most practical in your vacation trunk.

Then you will need a couple of simple shirtwaist frocks of white or pastel tub silk, which may be bought for under $10 each, and a slightly dressier white or pastel crepe ensemble consisting of frock and jacket or three-quarter coat. You may find this for between $15 and $20 in any dress department.

The barefoot boy of Whittier fame has a modern rival in the current barefoot girl of fashion.

Summer shoes approach the barefoot style as closely as possible, while still maintaining a sole and heel, as protection against stone bruises and such, and the up and coming debutante has practically discarded stockings in favor of sun-tan.

The vogue for allowing the toes to wriggle untrammeled in the breeze has taken the country by storm, and both beach sandals and evening slippers now consist of only a few narrow straps laced across a slender instep.

Of course the barefoot boy never went to the trouble to lacquer his toe-nails a vivid scarlet, or to apply any of those new "liquid stockings" which supply a model sun-tan in 10 minutes.

First Wedding Anniversary

By Mrs. Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. My husband and I will celebrate our first wedding anniversary soon, and we are going to celebrate the event by having a dinner in one of the down-town hotels. The guests will be composed of the friends who attended our wedding dinner last year. What would be an appropriate hour for the dinner?

2. I have a girl friend who is a very clever artist and I have been wondering if I could be in keeping with the affair to have her make some clever invitations, and what should be printed on them?

3. I would like to have my bridesmaid wear the dress she wore for her wedding, and I would like to wear my wedding dress. What do you think of the idea . . . ? as my wedding was a quiet afternoon wedding and our dresses were both very conservative?

4. Should I ask my guests to gather at our apartment for cocktails first, or should they go directly to the hotel where I will greet them? Several of the guests will come from out of town.

1—Eight o'clock would be an appropriate dinner hour.

2—Instead of having this friend make sketches for the invitations, which wouldn't, I think, be a very appropriate thing to do, I suggest that you use her art in having her make special place cards for the party.

3—It depends entirely on your wishes concerning this, and on the appropriateness of the mode of the dress to this occasion.

4—I like very much the plan to have your guests meet first at your home, for cocktails. This would be especially convenient too for the out-of-town guests who may wish to do a bit of "fixing up" after their journey. Too this pre-dinner gathering in your own home will give an even more gala beginning to your party. If you decide to do this, perhaps you'd better push your dinner hour forward to half after eight!

Forest Denizens

Why is it that one seldom finds ferns in gardens? These feathery denizens of the woods combine perfectly with rocks, trees, shrubs and flowers and flourish from the Equator to the Arctic Circle. For a good many years gardeners have been under the delusion that ferns are difficult to grow. Nothing could be further from the truth

Strong, Silent Men Awarded Honors

By Sheilah Graham

A WOMAN'S happiest moment is when she marries the man she wants. She's even happier when she marries the man someone else wants.

The ladies are peculiar that way. The more the sex chase the men of their choice, the more they think they have reason to congratulate themselves when they lead them to the altar.

But doesn't happen very often. The popular lads, those whose lives seem to consist of a twenty-four hour a day tete-a-tete with as many different gals, are too good at avoiding the matrimonial noose.

It's the boys whom no damsels seem to want who always wind up their teens by placing the ring on the only important female finger.

THE HE-MAN TYPE

In my time I've listened to many gals get hysterical over the strong, silent he-man type, James Cagney, Colin Clive, Johnny Weissmuller, knock the ladies for a loop when they do their screen stuff.

"What a punch, what a poise," they all gurgle dreamily.

In my time I've been smitten with the same strong silent worship too, so I know a little of the ecstasy that fills a female's being at the sight of the caveman relic in action.

But what happens to them all when marrying time comes around. Where do they vanish?

The most near-sighted person couldn't possibly mistake them for the nondescript nervous hen-pecked looking lads espoused by the average female.

"How happy I would be if we could float into a paradise like this for the rest of our lives," a few months ago I heard an ecstatic blonde murmur into the ear of the waspy waisted adonis dancing with her. He pretended to misunderstand her proposal of marriage.

"You, too, are a beautiful dancer," he raped vaguely. The girl said nothing more, but a look I recognized as "I will get this man or die," stole across her features.

A week ago she regretfully married a wide-waisted non-dancer.

I hope this story will be a lesson to the gals trying to capture gigolos. They are not the kind who lead little girls up the aisle to the altar—fortunately.

It's a sad truth for the female sex to digest, but the boys who are expert at drawing the female crowd are also expert at avoiding the traps laid to trip them.

The boys who flirt are the boys who flee when the whisper "Make me your wife" is mouthed by a pair of female lips. Which perhaps is just as well for the ball and chain sex.

Several smart ladies of my acquaintance have in the past professed to love the boys with brains. "So nice to be married to a brilliant conversationalist," I remember one declaring. "So nice to have a man to do one's thinking," another rhapsodized.

They all ended their brain worship by marrying saps.

Intelligent women give masculine brains the go by when they get married. If you don't believe me, look around.

Censor Child Tactfully

By LISA GRENELLE

ANYBODY with any "savvy," even a child, knows that it is poor business to ask a favor or a decision when the potential benefactor or judge is hungry or tired.

And yet, any time that we can get hold of Jimmie we consider a good time to put him "on the spot" because of his shirking of school assignments, or to give him a thorough talking to on his shortcomings generally.

Children must be pretty continuously corrected and frequently scolded and punished, if they are to be kept in line. But the well-adjusted, happy child is quite amenable, reasonable and good-natured if tactfully approached, with some regard to time and place.

The reason why so many children resent correction is because they are approached at the wrong time.

It must be understood that I refer especially to the bad habit, the growing tendency that must be arrested, not to more trivial and immediate faults which are better corrected at the time.

Strawberry Bleach for Freckles

Question: My hands are dark and old looking. What can I do to make them appear lighter and more attractive? What should I use for a good bleaching cream for my face and neck? Do you think I can get good results by making my own bleach?

M. M., Boston.

Answer: Hands require as much pampering as you can give them to keep them young looking. I would suggest that you rub them frequently with a lemon, and each night before you retire massage them with a good nourishing cream.

One of the best bleaching lotions I know is the juice of fresh strawberries. Apply it to your face as often as you desire and leave it on for a few minutes. But if you have no freckles and your skin is clear, why do you object to its natural skintone?

Hair Needs Brushing

Question: My hair is dry and wavy. I would like to treat it in such a way as to remove the wave. Will brushing destroy a permanent wave?

G. R., Roxbury.

Answer: Brushing will not destroy a permanent wave. In fact, brushing will deepen your wave and make your hair glossy and beautiful. You should brush your hair every day, away from the scalp, for 10 or 15 minutes.

Flounces for Gala Days

By MARIAN MARTIN

Years ago . . . you can't remember it . . . women used to flounce about in their clothes. And was it fun! Well, you have a grand new indoor sport to learn, and here is a good way in which to learn it. Of course, the perfect flounced dress "wishes" as this one will if you make it of taffeta or another "swishy" fabric. But better, perhaps, keep to a cool cotton for summer . . . an embroidered organdie or something like that. Whether you make it long or just ankle length you will adore to flounce about in this stunning frock.

Pattern 9016 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 4⅞ yards 39 inch fabric.

Send 15 cents in coin or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address the style number and size of each pattern.

New Emollient Does Work as Ably as Though You Went to Bed All Greased Up

POSED BY JOAN BLONDELL

By Juliet Shelby

IF YOU ARE WEARYING of going to bed cold-creamed up like a channel swimmer, and you plan to live right next to Nature for the remainder of the summer and let the world and your face go hang—this article is for you.

A cream that has but one purpose in life—to make dry, drawn faces soft and fresh and young again—has just appeared to whet our appetites and shake off mid-summer doldrums. All you do is to massage it into the skin, leave it on for 10 minutes and, presto—it does its work as efficiently as though you had gone to bed all greased up.

Even the bravest of cold cream martyrs rebel at old-fashioned methods of greasing these torturing nights. Can you imagine dreaming of cool, gurgling brooks and rolling breakers and snow-capped peaks, when emollients drip and trickle down your cheeks, into your mouth, and well-nigh strangle you?

This cream boasts a completeness of absorption hitherto unknown, so that the skin benefits in two weeks' time by its extremely penetrating ingredients. Indeed its penetrating powers are such that after leaving it on the face for ten minutes, very little is left on the surface to wipe away. And we consider that a pretty fine test for any nourishing cream. Its name is indicative of the work it does and if your skin is dry and "crepey" it's just going to "eat it up." I must warn you that the price of this cream isn't cheap, but when you consider the work it does, I think you'll agree with me that it is a real economy.

Since we are on the subject of creams, let me tell you of a new cold cream that has just appeared from the laboratories of a firm that is world-famous for its lotions. For soft and smooth consistency, you won't be able to beat it. It is snow white, perfumed with lilac, and is to be used chiefly as a cleanser.

We have experimented with creams and creams, but this one really surprised us. And don't let its inexpensiveness fool you. It has the same fine texture of far more costly creams, and it does its work as beautifully as the best of them.

The cost of this cream is really so low that it is hard to believe it can be obtained on the market at such a price. A few days' use of this cold cream will convince you that it is one of the finds of the summer.

If you are interested to know the names of these creams and where they can be purchased in Boston, phone Juliet Shelby, Liberty 4000; or if you prefer writing for this information, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Shelby, Boston Evening American, Boston.

Dorothy's secret makes honeymoons last forever

DOROTHY is the most adorable young wife—she always looks charming! Yet she spends very little on clothes. Tom's salary is small.

"I buy inexpensive frocks that are dainty and colorful," she says. "Then I keep them crisp and new looking with Lux. Why take chances with ordinary soaps that may fade colors, shrink wool things, leave clothes dowdy and drab? I never do—I always use Lux."

Wise Dorothy—she'll always read admiration in her husband's eyes! So will every wife who keeps clothes exquisite with Lux. Lux has none of the harmful alkali ordinary soaps often have and with Lux there's no injurious cake-soap rubbing. Safe in water—safe in Lux!

LUX

By L. F. ROSS
Boston Wing Commander

Compilation and examination of the official figures listed on the timers' sheets, show Torrey L. Capo, 17, of 200 President Lane, Quincy, won the championship of the Boston American-Boston Sunday Advertiser wing of the Junior Birdmen, with a total score of 275 points at the New England Model Plane Derby at Franklin Park last Saturday.

The runner-up in number of points was a Group "B" contestant, Herbert Wieland, No. 1963, of 4 Hofmann avenue, Lawrence, with a total score of 250 while third place was won by Sidney Wallerstein, No. 6306, another Group "B" member, with 225.

Torrey L. Capo

Torrey wins the title of New England's best model plane flier, the wing trophy, upon which his name is being engraved, three medals, and a trip to Washington, D. C., with all expenses paid, to compete for the national Junior Birdmen title on July 28.

In addition to their medals, a few top winners will receive copies of the poem "Lindy's Solo Flight, composed by Joseph Smiles of Everett and donated by the author.

New Activities Start for Junior Birdmen

While Boston wing members are still talking about the derby and the lucky winners are awaiting their medals and their certificates of proficiency to be sent from national headquarters, new activities are being planned here.

For the next few days we are going to give news of our members' individual activity and the doings of various squadrons, membership reports and other news.

On July 15 we'll tell you about our "Funnybone Contest," with cash awards that will start soon afterward. This unique activity will include publishing of one or two aviation jokes each week in our column and the lucky winners who submit the best ones will receive cash or Uncle Sam's greenbacks. You'll be surprised how many really fine aviation jokes there are. But wait, don't send them in yet. Watch for the announcement.

Just as soon as all reports are in, national headquarters will furnish us with complete results of the derbies held in other cities. That's something in which you will be interested.

In the meantime we want to publicly thank the city officials, police officer, contestants, timers, judges and all others who contributed in making the New England Model Plane Derby a big success.

We are indebted to H. Y. Siegel of the Washington Jewelry Co., Washington street; H. Wells, vice-president of Burdett College, and other individuals and institutions for the use of stop watches and field glasses.

Foundation Recipe for Home Fruit Drinks

Ingenuity of "Mixer" Accounts for Real Success

Here is another foundation recipe, with variations, to clip and add to your long list which you must have by this time. Don't you find them most helpful? We are sure you will like this one because it is for fruit drinks that are popular now.

Not many directions are needed for fruit drinks, the success depends a great deal on the ingenuity of the "mixer." Juice from fresh fruit and syrup drained from stewed fruits, or canned fruits, and bottled or canned fruit juices and carbonated beverages all can be combined in making fruit drinks.

AVOID USE OF ICE

A fruit drink must be refreshing when it is to be served. It must not be diluted by ice during the chilling. Strained fruit juices are generally used rather than juices that have bits of fruit floating in them. Pieces of fruit in large portions, of course, are very acceptable. The up-to-date hostess freezes a tray of fruit juices, not only to keep the drink cold, but to keep it from diluting while serving. Try a strong lemonade, frozen, instead of lemon slices, with your iced tea. Ginger ale cubes and grape juice, or lemonade are tasty.

The following foundation recipe, with variations, was taken from "Food Cooking," by Heseltine and Dow.

SUGAR SYRUP FOR FRUIT BEVERAGES
(2-3 cup)

½ cup sugar
½ cup water

Put the sugar and water in a saucepan; stir over direct heat until the sugar is dissolved. Cool before using.

GOOD COMBINATIONS FOR FRUIT BEVERAGES
(4 full glasses or 8 small glasses)

Lemonade—Two-thirds cup sugar syrup, ½ cup lemon juice (4 lemons), 2½ cups water.

Orangeade—One-half cup sugar syrup, 1½ cups orange juice, 3 tbsps. lemon juices (1 lemon), 1¼ cups water. Many people prefer undiluted orange juice to orangeade.

Limeade—One cup sugar syrup, 1 cup fresh lime juice, 2 cups water.

Grapefruit-ade—One-half cup sugar syrup, 3 tbsps. lemon juice (1 lemon), 1½ cups orange juice, 1-3 cups grapefruit juice (canned or fresh).

Grape Fizz—Two cups purple or white grape juice, 2 cups dry ginger ale. Remove the tips from the mint; crush the stalks in the hot syrup; let stand an hour; strain. Add fruit juices; chill. Add ginger ale just before serving. Use tips of mint as garnish.

Pineapple-ade—Two cups crushed fresh or canned pineapples, 2 cups boiling water, 3 tbsps. lemon juice, ¾ to ½ cup sugar syrup, 1 cup orange juice. Pour the boiling water over the crushed pineapple; set aside to cool. Strain; add remaining fruit juices.

Cranberry Punch—Two-thirds cup sugar syrup, 1 cup orange juice, 3 tbsps. lemon juice (1 lemon), 1 cup strained cooked cranberry juice or canned cranberry cocktail, 1 cup water.

Mixed Fruit Punch—One cup syrup drained from canned fruit, 1 cup loganberry or grape juice, 1 cup orange juice, 1-3 cup lemon juice, 2-3 cup water.

Tea Punch—One-half cup sugar syrup, 1 cup tea (made with 2 tsps. of green or oolong tea), ½ cup lemon or lime juice, ½ cup pineapple juice, 1 cup orange juice, 1¼ cups water.

Have an assortment of unusual and easy-to-make cookies on hand, to serve with your iced drinks during the hot summer months. To keep moist cookies soft, and hard cookies crisp, store each separately.

Cruel Whip Found by Linda and Jerome Indicates Evil Man Is on Island

SYNOPSIS

Jerome Crain, young naval architect, and a wealthy society girl, named Linda, are guests aboard the yacht owned by the millionaire, Thomas Tucker, anchored at San Cristobal. Jerome and Linda are bored with one another and when the other guests go ashore, the young couple, each believing the other had gone, stays on board. One of the sailors contracts fever and the yacht is quarantined. No one is allowed to come aboard or leave. Jerome and Linda escape in a skiff, landing on a strange island. Linda wanders off while Jerome repairs the boat.

Later, he finds her scantily clad, the clothes she took off to dry missing. Linda and Jerome have the uncomfortable feeling of being followed. Then an eerie cry issues from the jungle. Frightened, they hurry back to the beach in time to see their boat —which Jerome had tied securely—drifting away and most of his clothes gone, too. Searching for the mysterious person or persons, responsible for their plight, they come upon a small plantation and a house which has a carefully tended yet vacant look.

CHAPTER VI

A raucous voice clamored with startling violence, "Well, what in blazes do you want?"

Linda clutched at Jerome. He looked overhead. A huge macaw with gorgeous plumage was perched on a high branch watching them. He gave a harsh, grating laugh. "We seem to have struck the retreat for some sort of hermit. But if he doesn't want intruders why should he have set our boat adrift?"

There seemed to be no reasonable answer to that. Even more puzzling, the premises showed evidence not only of a great deal of work performed originally in the building of the house and laying out of the plantations, but also of an upkeep that required constant labor.

There was no appearance of abandonment. In the tropics the struggle to keep back the encroachment of the jungle is constant so that a few days of neglect would find such a clearing overgrown and its plantations choked with rank vegetation.

A NATIVE VILLAGE?

Yet on the contrary there were none of those evidences of present tenantry that are to be seen about an inhabited dwelling and in the immediate surroundings. The place looked as if it had been recently closed and its accessories gathered up and put away for the brief absence of its occupant. Whoever this might be he would scarcely absent himself for any length of time without leaving a caretaker to keep the premises in order and feed the chickens and whatever other dependencies might still be revealed.

Jerome looked at Linda, then said, "It looks to me as if there might be a native village or quarters or something of the sort near and that the people are shy and unchristianized, maybe."

"They must be nutty to have set our boat adrift," Linda agreed, "That alone is enough to scare."

They walked over to the house. Its walls were solidly built from blocks of lava stone and its tiled roof was thatched with palm. It faced the pool and there was a verandah with a thatched covering sloping down so that its edge was low.

They went in under this and came to a wide front door of heavy mahogany with a big brass knocker. Jerome's rapping brought no response.

"This door came from some old palace, I should say, or monastery perhaps," he said, and tried the latch. It was unlocked and they went into a living room that was spacious and high ceilinged, cool and dark. It was barely furnished with a few heavy pieces and fine grass mats but no textiles of any sort that might be destroyed by mold or insects.

The interior confirmed the opinion that the premises had been closed within the last few hours and things put away during the absence of the owner.

"But he's not going to be long away," Jerome said.

"Why not?"

MUSEUM PIECES

"Because he wouldn't leave such things as these indefinitely at the mercy of anybody who happened to land here. Just look at those chests along the wall. Each one is a museum piece. Priceless."

There were four of these chests in the large room. Two were about six feet long by two feet wide and slightly deeper, made from some cabinet wood that had darkened with age. They were richly carved on the top and sides. Three heavy locks secured them and there were great handles of brass at either end. Their state of preservation was excellent and two or three still showed heavy gilding and color.

"Old Spanish chests?" Linda called.

Jerome leaned over one and examined it. "Yes, but made in Holland, I should say. This one has royal arms. The Duke of Alva's perhaps. But here's another that's pure Spanish. They're all worth their weight in gold."

"He must have a lot of confidence in his looney caretakers," Linda said.

"I don't believe he's left for very long. Jerome took hold of one of the brass handles and tested the weight of a chest. "Packed full of stuff, too."

"Let's hope he's left a few clothes handy. It would be a crime to break into these."

Two rooms opened off the large one. One had a handsome table deck of marquetry and a couple of pretty chairs with high backs. Along the walls were mahogany book shelves with the doors closely fitted but with wire keys in the locks.

The other room had a big four-poster bed that was cane bottomed. It had neither mattress, pillows or sheets. There were no closets, but two huge armoires that were empty. All the windows were screened under heavy wooden jalousie shutters.

and store room somewhere."

They went out and round the house. In the rear they found another but smaller stone building with thatched roof behind a thick clump of bamboos. It was about fifteen by twenty and the heavy door of this also was unlocked. It had two rooms that proved to be kitchen and store room, as Jerome had said. The kitchen was bare of everything but a cook stove and the ordinary utensils. But there seemed to be no tableware of any sort nor any cutlery. The store room, however, was well stocked with supplies of the sort that a ship might carry for a long voyage. There were crates and boxes of staples and delicacies, either tinned or in glass.

She said irritably, "It's a locoed island. Owner and everybody."

"Chesty worth a fortune. No telling what's in them. A storeroom full of supplies for anybody that comes along. Yet not so much as an old pair of white duck breeches or a pair of grass slippers or a hatchet or even a kitchen knife to pare yams."

FINDS HEAVY WHIP

She said shortly, "It doesn't take a Sherlock Holmes to get the workings of that."

"Well, what are they?"

"Not one thing's been done to protect anything from strangers landing here. But there's been care to put away every little thing that might be carried off by mischievous children or idiots."

"Then what do you deduce from that?"

"What any normal intelligence ought. It's owner has reason to believe that nobody dares land, but it has inhabitants who are apt to pick up things left lying round and carry them off."

"Then why not the stores?"

Linda rose, stepped to the door, and took from a hook on the back of it a heavy whip. She tossed it to Jerome. "That looks like a series of lessons to keep out of the kitchen."

"It's a South African shambok—a rhinoceros hide whip. And it's not been hanging here as an ornament. You could cut a Kaffir half in two with the beastly thing."

"Not quite the thing to use on half-wit children," she said.

"No, or grown up half-wits. It's another line on him, though."

"Just he's a cruel devil?"

"Yes. Spanish, probably. The chests date from the Spanish occupation of the Netherlands. The desk is Dutch marquetry. I've seen painted leather chairs like those in shops in old Spanish colonies; and that shambok is Boer—came from the veldt.

"Some of the Boers were pretty bad when it came to flogging native servants, I've been told . . .

Indications today were that a pleasant little argument was in the making in the Governor's council when and if the name of State Auditor Francis X. Hurley was submitted by Governor Ely as nominee for the Boston Elevated trusteeship left vacant by General Charles H. Cole. Cole resigned to further his campaign for the governorship.

According to reports, as yet unconfirmed, Hurley would get a ten-year "Ely" appointment paying $5000 a year, and Thomas H. Buckley of Abington, Hurley's first deputy, would step into the auditorship. Buckley is the Democratic convention nominee for the auditor's post.

Auditor Hurley decided not to seek re-election this year, and it was thought that he would return to his private law practice. Both appointments, it is said, were to be submitted to the executive council at its mid-week meeting tomorrow.

Agnes Sutherson

That was the "doll" he planned to demand from the missing woman lawyer in return for marrying her, according to correspondence exchanged between Poderjay and his other wife, blonde Mme. Suzanne Ferrand, also in a Vienna jail.

A lengthy alibi which Poderjay forwarded to New York police from Vienna also stated that Miss Duff Vernon, whom he married at the Little Church Around the Corner, boarded a train for Montreal bound December 21, with the announced intention of meeting an "old flame."

Accompanying the statement of the Jugoslav adventurer was an attested statement from Mme. Ferrand, in which she said that Captain Poderjay possessed so many "feminine characteristics" that she believed him incapable of committing a murder.

MYSTERY TRIP IS REAL PUZZLE

Not even the captain will know where the S. S. Steel Pier of the Cape Cod Steamship Co. is going when it pulls away from Commercial wharf on Thursday morning, for the very simple reason that it will be a "Mystery Cruise"—a mystery even to the master of the boat.

In fact, no one will know until the boat is out in the harbor. Then a bulleting of the passengers will be made and the S. S. Steel Pier will follow the bidding of the vote.

MAY SEE U. S. FLEET

It may be the North Shore, South Shore or down to the Cape Cod Canal, or, more likely, Provincetown, where the U. S. fleet will be on Thursday.

The Cape Cod Steamship Co. has been running excursions on the S.S. Steel Pier since the start of the summer, and the palatial ship has proved tremendously popular with persons seeking to get away from the humid city for a few hours of fresh, cool air.

RATES REDUCED

As a measure of co-operation with the pleasure-seeking public, the Cape Cod Steamship Co. has made it possible for more of the people to become acquainted with its new service, through reduction in rates for adults from $2 to $1, and a corresponding reduction from $1 to 50 cents for children.

This is the special rate for the "Mystery Cruise," and the Boston Evening American has been chosen as the medium to spread the good word. In tomorrow's Boston Evening American a coupon, entitling the holder to reduced rates on the Steel Pier, will be printed.

Usually the Steel Pier runs on excursions from Boston to Provincetown, leaving Boston at 10:15 a. m. and returning about 6 p. m.

PROVINCETOWN LIVELY

Provincetown this year will be a place of liveliness, what with its usual hundreds of artists, and the influx of navy men from the Atlantic fleet, present for maneuvers.

Men, women and children are invited to take advantage of this reduction. Just clip the coupon in tomorrow's Boston Evening American, present it at the office of the Cape Cod Steamship Co., at Commercial wharf, Thursday morning, and exchange it for a boat ticket.

Be sure to order your copy of tomorrow's Boston Evening American now. And remember, one coupon is necessary for each ticket. If four are planning to make the trip, four coupons will be needed.

BOSTON AMERICAN
NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

NORMA TO MEET THELMA'S SPOUSE

This Is Life
by
ROBERT E. ROGERS

It looks as if the summer months, which used to be the leanest of lean times for actor and actress are now, if not exactly fat at least a lot more hopeful than they used to be. And infinitely fatter for the playgoer, greatly to the pleasure and encouragement of that almost extinct species.

Robert E. Rogers

If you live in a small city where you never get to see a play except by tripping expensively to New York or even if you live in Boston and have to depend on the sparse and uncertain fare that New York sends you, you can feed fat your ancient love of the theater by a process no more complicated than hopping into the car and driving for an hour or two to some rural village or seaside resort, where, like as not, you will see a number of Broadway notables in recent Broadway successes that never reached Boston, or, better still, some new-out piece by a famous dramatist which is destined to be the hit of the next season. Then, when you live in the sticks, you can smile smoothly at visiting Manhattanites and murmur: Oh, yes, I saw it when . . .

To be precise, as Hiram Motherwell's magazine, The Stage, informs me in its latest summer theater issue, there are no less than 100 odd weather theater organizations all set for the July-August season, most of them with announced schedule of half a dozen plays at least, all in the smart or serious modern manner. Most of these organizations are in the neighborhood of the East, with New England getting rather more than its share. For your actor and actress like beaches and swimming and woods and lakes and fishing as well as the next one, and between performances and rehearsals a good deal of vacationing can be done.

If you are good at figures you can calculate that its set-up will account for at least a thousand stars—at ten per theater—who will perform between five and six hundred plays—all to the profit of the members of the Actors' Guild, the dramatists and even the audience. For not every evening is a table for moonlight sans, one gets tired even of Cambridge, and the sound equipment for the films in the village town hall is likely to be something terrible.

When you add at least twenty summer schools of the drama, with a new performance every week, the figures become rather staggering. The theaters range from people like Hiram Motherwell's "Twelfth Night" at Ogunquit, and most of the well-known Broadway stars and plays of the present day down to the recent set of graduates from schools of expression, who have never trodden a professional stage but who, for all that, are just as professional as can be.

The theaters range from places like Whalom Parks in Fitchburg, where the Gill brothers used to present tabloid musicals when I was a young boy, to the quaint historic "opery house" of the good rush days in Central City, Colorado, which Robert Edmund Jones has refurbished in the gorgeous old red plush manner and where he makes one production every summer, with the same audience in the costumes of the General Grant hey-day.

Along the seashore they may be like that at Kennebunkport, where the theater was collapsed or turned down or something—where Eugene O'Neill first saw his pieces on any stage and where there was imminent danger, every high tide, of the theater—stage, actors, audience and all—spilling into the drink. It may be like the theater school at Gloucester with the scent of old copper paint, factory stuck up close to a marine railway and painted an infernal red. It may be a big barn on an abandoned farm. Or it may be something new and sumptuous and designed, like the one down at Dennis on Cape Cod with mural paintings by Rockwell Kent. You pays your dollar and you takes your chance!

The popular names of the theater race madly from summer playhouse to summer playhouse to appear as "guest" or "visiting" stars. At the most out of the way place you are likely to see, unexpectedly, either some old favorite whom you have loved long since and long a while or some young audacious starlet who has just got her (or his) toes on the Broadway ladder, who will be a smash next fall, will be kidnaped by Hollywood in mid-season, and will be a national by-word by Easter. So swiftly do things move in the amusement world of today.

The noses of the artist colonies are out of joint. Who cares for artists—they may be anything for part, any way, and eschew the life Bohemian—when there are real, if fledgling, players about, so unmistakably actors by their make-up, make-up, all ready to appear at Town Hall Tonite!

Still, it is better to motor to a summer theater than to have to live in the midst of them. One of your nearest and dearest may be invited to star as a supernumerary—and her life ruined. But if you dare run the risk, it is amusing to see the "rogues and vagabonds" of old tradition domesticated in knickers and pullovers, in slacks and pea-jackets, sporting on the lawn of the local playhouse or shelling a pan of peas between rehearsals. It reminds one that the Moliere tradition is still alive.

Second Reunion Today Depends Upon O. K of Officials

NEW YORK
DAY BY DAY

New York, July 10—Tommy Guinan carries on the tradition established by his sister Texas in the New York night restaurant field. He is reputed to have imported the noisy greeter [illegible] from Paris. Anyway Will is yowling his welcome in a newly decorated old Guinan manages [illegible] the same devotion that characterized his sister to ward their white-haired parents. He dines with them nights in one of his own or some other of the giddyap spots, forming a sedate and somewhat incongruous trio in the surrounding hoopla.

O. O. McIntyre

For Guinan himself is a [illegible] to the usual [illegible] of the calling he pursues. He dresses [illegible] little to say, indeed is shy. Yet [illegible] use to the ways and carnal [illegible] worldlings who live so hard and [illegible].

Unconsciously or unconsciously creating this background of mystery as to his backers, he demonstrates the Guinan flair for showmanship. It is abracadabra that appeals to the night-life mood for whispers. And the sinister implications they imply.

I passed New York's narrowest house at 75½ Bedford street in Greenwich Village today. It is particularly known as the one-time home of the late Edna St. Vincent Millay, and is where she wrote "My Candle Burns at Both Ends," etc. Although three stories high and 30 feet long, it is only 9.6 feet in width. Carnera, prowling, was captivated by it. Giants always like small things.

The public cricket grounds in Van Cortland park are a-speed of evenings and all day Sundays and holidays. The players are West Indians who form the majority of elevator operators in upper west side apartment houses, and whose accents are as British as London. And far more impertinent.

Dean Cornwell, the artist, has gone gypsying in his flivver to Italy for the summer and instead of invading the pulsating Rome Florence and Venice will wander through the medieval, fortified cities built on the mountain tops and practically inaccessible until the advent of Fords, Mussolini's clean-up of filth and the bandits. Some of the finest frescoes of their periods are in the remote sections. Cornwell, who turned from magazine illustrations to murals, is back to his first love to provide the bankroll to return to murals.

And Cornwell's battle to give up cigarettes will interest all over-indulgers. He smoked from 40 to 60 a day and tried to quit first by smoking moderately without inhaling. This he did for a year. But was soon inhaling as furiously and incessantly as ever. After several years of trying various methods, he began smoking and inhaling small black cigars. This spoiled his appetite for cigarettes, but he became addicted to cigars. However, he found the latter easier to abandon and won the fight—at least he hasn't smoked for two months.

The successful run of "Dodsworth" proved an unexpectedly pleasant windfall for Sinclair Lewis, from whose novel the play was made. A bit of the season, his royalties for the run sometimes topped $1000 a week. He recently purchased a $100,000 estate in Bronxville, which was in turn presented to his wife, Dorothy Thomson, as a wedding anniversary gift.

There is a dark limbered hotel on South street where I am told many writers have gone in quest of water front material. It is within aromatic distance of the fish market and all day rumbles with the hurry burry of trucks. Jack London is reputed to have roomed there at various times. Also William McKee. The interior is funny with hard liquor and robust pipes are in majority. A black cat curled in sleep at a street window and the ruddy man behind the bar seemed in perpetual glower—the sort a request for a glass of beer would make itchy for the flying starter.

In vagrant eave-gazing along Murray Hill, during a bonfire sunset, I spied the servant quarters on top floor of J. P. Morgan's mansion. There is space for two dozen tenants. The horticultural urge is pronounced for at each window is a plant. It is legendary on Murray Hill that few servants ever leave the Morgan employ.

RED STRATEGY GETS PERMIT

Dawn Strike on Boston Common today with only a few "Free Thaelmann" placards scattered about as reminders that another Communist gathering had held fourth at Parkman Bandstand in the interests of the "Boston Committee to Aid Victims of German Fascism."

A bit of strategy had procured from Acting Mayor John F. Dowd the permit that gave the Communists free sway, with no uniformed police to curb them. Dowd previously denied the permit, but Dr. Samuel G. Pavlo of Malden argued the acting mayor down by showing him that Mayor Mansfield had indorsed a dinner for Lord Marley last February.

Lord Marley was chairman of the World Committee to Aid Victims of German Fascism. One of the mayor's secretaries wasn't sure that Mayor Mansfield would like last night's meeting, but Dowd took a chance. The affair was devoted to extolling Communism.

Eyes and ears of Massachusetts were turned backing [illegible] turned towards Washington today seeking confirmation of the report that Judge John J. Burns of Fairmont would be appointed counsel to the new Federal Stock Exchange Board which was holding its first organization meeting.

Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy, former Bostonian, said that nothing definite had been decided as to selection of Judge Burns as counsel to his board, but he made no denial of the report and it was known that Kennedy was favorably inclined toward the jurist.

James M. Landis, federal trade commissioner and co-member with Kennedy on the stock board, generally accredited with introducing Judge Burns' name, Bob Landis and the judge were professors at Harvard Law School. Judge Burns, Massachusetts young set appointee to the Supreme Court, would resign if he accepted the federal post. He said he would comment later.

Sullivan of the Dudley street station, and the witnesses included Patrolman William Harmon, who was with Gardner at the time.

SCHULBERG OFFERED BRITISH FILM POST -:- WAR LINKED LESLIE HOWARD WITH STAGE

Lupe Velez Hollywood Bound to Star in Columbia's "The Girl Friend"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service Inc.)

Enroute to Hollywood, July 10—Good day. Here I am back among you after a month's holiday and business trip to N. Yawk. Hope you are as glad to scan the old column over the N. Yawk. Hope you are as glad to scan the old column as I am to write it once again.

Well, let's see. I haven't been home yet to pay any social visits at the studios, but I did see B. F. Schulberg in New York. Ben has a fore-gone-to-be-successful look about him. He has been offered an important post as a British producer, and you needn't be surprised if he packs up and does an Alexander Korda.

If he does go to London and his plans really point to a trip to England, Sonya Sidney will go all Hollywood to stay in his English home.

Peples, wan and really sick, Lupe Velez boarded the train in Chicago. Trailing along by her side was Johnny Weissmuller looking in the pink and apparently undisturbed by Lupe's after dejection. "We get on an airplane," said Lupe, "and I get so sick I think I die. So I am on the train and maybe I lose my job. I don't know, I don't care." Lupe, oh I gathered between moans, is "The Girl Friend" a Columbia picture for which she was flying to Hollywood.

Chatter in Hollywood

Maybe I should say New York, since this tidbit happened in the big town. The hottest romance of the month is that of Glenda Farrell and Ronald Simmons, head of the Bruck Weiss Corp. company. Maybe when Bobby Nixon returns from Europe, England he will have a sweetheart back again and that my advice is for him to hurry. Ronnie had it bad and even went with Glen Is to a ben party given by Ray Weiss at her hotel apartment.

Here's a bet some of you may like. It was my bet. I, my ear just as I was ready to take the train in New York, that the newly-weight champion of the world Max Baer would be a terrific vendor of his own brand of Dorothy Dunbar. Last week Max suddenly decided he needed Dorothy's advice before he accepted any of the movie offers given him, and he had Ancil Hoffman, his manager, trying to locate the former Mrs. Baer in his home state, California. What a blow to some of the socialites who have fallen for the new idol to hear he is pining for Dorothy.

One of the brightest youngsters I have seen in a long time is the 11-year-old daughter of the Gene Towneses. The Towne family was on the train as far as Chicago, and Miss Towne did a Shirley Temple that is as good as some of the impersonations of her admirer, Fannie Brice. Towne, who with Graham Baker, turns out scenarios by the carload, has just sold "Polly and Her Boarding House" to a radio company which expects to star Polly Moran. Mrs. Towne was formerly Betty Browne of the Ziegfeld Follies and while in New York she was a guest at a reunion of ex-Follies beauties given by Miss Brice.

Star's Sterling Acting in "Of Human Bondage" Wins Him Praise from Fans

Leslie Howard's remarkably fine performance in "Of Human Bondage" has made this young veteran of the stage and screen again the subject of a nation's praise. Leslie has been known (never very intimately) for years to London and New York. But there has been a scarcity of facts, and a favorable lack of gossip, about the brown-haired leading man.

Here are some facts about the actor who is the rave in Boston by virtue of his performance at Keith's Memorial Theatre.

Leslie Howard

He was born Leslie Stainer on April 24th, 1893, in London. Is the son of non-professional parents and was trained in the subtleties of London society. Played and attended Harrow with Colonel Lindbergh. College he embarked upon a short lived career as a long clerk in the city. Then he went to war. War time theatricals at the front awakened a desire for the theater, and when he was demobilized he headed for the theatrical agencies. First role was in a provincial company of "Peg O' My Heart."

Then he scored on the London stage and shortly afterwards came to New York. Scored his first Broadway hit in "The Green Hat" with Katharine Cornell, then in "Outward Bound," "Her Cardboard Lover," "Berkeley Square," and other successes.

If he left the stage or screen he would probably write. You see he is a very talented young man. You may have seen him in his own successful stage play, "Murray Hill," and you probably have read his numerous amusing pieces which have been published in the "smart" magazines.

His two principal characteristics might be said to be: (a) Independence (b) Elusiveness.

Example A—Independence: Absolutely will not play a role which he does not believe in. Turned down a flattering offer to pose opposite Greta Garbo in "Queen Christina," saying it wouldn't be fair to her nor to him to accept a part for which he believed he was obviously unfitted. Turned down a role opposite Marion Davies, too.

Example B—Elusiveness: Sometimes he can't be found! Sometimes he forgets appointments! Sometimes he almost misses trains! When a studio searching party is looking for him he may be tramping through the woods in old clothes with his dogs. On a studio set it takes three assistant directors to keep track of him. Has a habit of vanishing like a wraith. Maybe he's napping in his dressing-room. More likely he's up on those cat-walks with his camera.

Would rather play polo than eat. Is a whale of a polo player. Loves it any hour or day of the week. Also plays a fast game of tennis and is a good swimmer.

Isn't particular about his clothes. His wife sees to them. Makes sure that he matches shirts, ties and sox. He believes first of all in comfort. Favorite outfit is a pair of old flannel trousers, a nondescript blazer jacket and a beret. He's happy in those.

He thinks domesticity a grand and is mad about his children a boy and a girl. His daughter is his close companion and is a good polo player.

His favorite dish is roast beef rare washed down with stout.

He'd like to shuttle back and forth endlessly between London (has a beautiful old manor house in England), New York and Hollywood—which seems to be pretty much what he does despite his belief that he spends too long a time in one place.

The writer's "Little Miss Marker" recently was filmed and received as one of the most popular pictures of the year.

Pirroni Pitches, McCarthy Catches At Braves Field

Carnera Moves on Maine Mutiny in Cup Fleet; Dr. O'Brien Comes Back

By AUSTEN LAKE

DISPLAYING AN ATTITUDE as coldly impersonal as a wood-chopper hacking a timber log, Patsy Pirroni, a blocky Italian youth with the sly, warped features of an Oriental, battered Jack McCarthy, a taller lad with the puffed features of a white Negro.

Austen Lake

It was an unpretty bout, devoid of crimson smears, and the crowd watched with the chilled apathy of a medical clinic watching an appendectomy, sometimes making locust noises and barnyard effects with their lips.

The marvel, if any, was that McCarthy, stolid and wooden, could absorb the terrific body smashes that spattered a spray of perspiration into the third row at ringside. I would say that he swallowed three times the punishment Max Baer handed Primo Carnera in the late battle of goofiness at the Long Island Bowl.

Pirroni, with muscles in shape and color like loaves of rye bread, might have been worn out in a longer fight by the sheer weariness of pumping round house wallops into McCarthy's moist middle. For Jack had little offense beyond the end of his own misses and a variety of night club hugs, cuddles and clinches.

In the end, although Pirroni hit him with everything but the ring planking, McCarthy ducked between the ropes breathing as lently as a sucking babe, his eyes looking like bungs of a charred keg and his livery lips a little puffier.

There was not 50 cents worth of damage inflicted on either man. But fortunately the preliminary bouts contained enough suffering to satisfy everybody, so that the crowd which oozed into Gaffney street at 11:15 felt its evening had not been spent in vain.

Baseball's No. 1 Player

WHO IS BASEBALL'S No. 1 man today, the player embodying most of the all-round abilities that made Ty Cobb the immortal of all time? Not Babe Ruth, because the Babe is passe, on his own admission, and ready for physical storage at the end of this season.

Well, I would say that today's No. 1 player is Bill Terry, the man most cordially disliked by the news gathering fraternity for his surly disposition, but none the less a master of steady hitting, one of the soundest defense men in the game and, certainly, as shrewd a handler of men as there is in the majors.

Oddly, if one were to fumble around for the next best candidates for this mythical top spot, two of them would also be first basemen, Lou Gehrig of the Yankees and Jimmy Foxx of the Athletics.

WHEN THE National League owners come together in New York tomorrow for the midsummer meeting, there is a strong likelihood that an attempt will be made to pin back the ears of the rabbit ball.

Judge Emil Fuchs of the Braves has gone to Gotham, armed with data and ready to fire both barrels into the bunny ball. He charges that the game has taken on the character of English cricket with all its breathless romping and has lost the balance of time and space that was its original charm.

There is no doubt that the life of the ball is increased tremendously during hot spells such as last week, because factory folk who make the ball admit that the rubber-cork core becomes more resilient in heat. Several major league owners whose players have been griped by sizzling drives too hot to handle, are complaining that the ball jeopardizes the precious cash they have invested in players.

THERE IS MUTINY in the America's Cup fleet, where the professional crews of the Rainbow, Weetamoe and Yankee are yelping for $100 a month basic pay instead of the $65 they signed on for. And they want $5 sailing money instead of $2.50, and $10 for winning a race instead of $5.

Attitude of the wealthy skippers, Harold Vanderbilt, Charles Francis Adams and Richard Boardman, is to blow the men down. Yet the yachts, which are scheduled to begin trials off Newport in earnest this week, would be seriously hampered by a determined mutiny. It would take all of two weeks to muster and train a new crew in the specialized art of handling the sensitive craft.

The afterguard, as the society sailors are called, are relying on the scarcity of sea jobs and the fact that it is more fun working on a cup boat than trawling for codfish in a dingy, to keep their crews intact.

Yale Coaches Will Not Spy on Casey's Football

IN VIEW OF THE FACT that Eddie Casey, Harvard's football head coach, is shortly to start his summer coaching school at Boston University, E. F. H. of Brookline wants to know why it wouldn't be a good idea for the Yale coaching staff, newly reclothed since last year, to sit in and study Casey's system at close range.

The answer is that Casey, like Crisler of Princeton in his recent school at Northeastern, teaches little more than the actual framework of coaching, familiar to every student of the game and containing nothing original for experienced football brains.

It recalls, vaguely, the time several years ago when Canisius College of Buffalo was coming on to play Boston College, and Luke Urban, Canisius coach, complained that he could not afford to scout B. C.

So Joe McKenney sat down and drew up a fullsome, detailed plan of all his plays, with more accurate notations than any scout could have gleaned. These he sent to Urban with a postscript which read:

"I give you my plays but I refuse to let you know when and where I am going to use them during the game."

WHILE ON THE summer football tack, it is definitely certain that Dr. Eddie O'Brien, Jr., well known official and Boston surgeon, is going to revoke his own retirement from the game and will accept the list of assignments left behind when Ed Thorp died recently.

Twice in recent years I have scooped the town on Eddie's story of retiring, and twice Eddie has scooped me by returning to the game. Anyway Dr. Eddie is good for two news yarns every year, i. e., (1) He has quit; (2) He is back again.

LYNCH OPENS STATE TITLE DEFENSE

By Bill Grimes

Four pre-meet golf pros Charles H. Cross of the M. G. A. prompt at 9 o'clock this morning at The Country Club and when Lynch, Wiren, Hoe, Wood and Sands begin driving, a low and slightly jaundiced eye down the first fairway, the 34 Massachusetts amateur championship was officially under way.

Joseph P. Lee, Bay Hill, is defending the crown won a year ago at Worcester against a field of 141 aspirants.

Lynch has been playing unusually well. He is long off the tees and a fine iron player and, if he is able to get a few or putts to drop, he will be up with the leaders.

KIROUAC BEST BET

Fred J. Wright, Jr. stands out as Lynch's chief opponent. Wright is a six time winner of the event but he has not competed in it since defeating Eddie Lowery at Winchester three years ago.

Until he allowed he'd like to go by default, Wright had established an all time record of seven the championship four consecutive years.

Eddie Kirouac is a strong favorite. Kirouac won the championship two years ago at Kernwood but illness forced him to relinquish it at Worcester after a 19 hole semi-final match with Eddie Lowery. Now Kirouac is back in condition, and looks the most dangerous man in the entire field.

There is a small army of youngsters playing in this championship, and not a few of them will make the match play grade.

Foremost is Jimmy Gannon, 122-pound midget from Happy Valley, who gave one of the finest exhibitions of golf ever seen at Winchester last week against Jack Monger and Freddie Horsod, when he carded a 70 on his own ball.

FISHER SINKS TEE SHOT

Other fine young golfers entered are the Martin twins Leo and Edward, Arthur V. Rogers, Jr. Harry Wood, Jr., Herb Lund just John Statz, Rod Brown, Jr., Guy Hares, Bobby Knowles Eddie Petersen, Don Ritchie, Bud and Fred Galvin, Dan Shea, Jr., Chase Howe, Al Richards and Wilfred Greaves.

When the figures for the qualifying rounds are compiled, there a little doubt that Bill Blaney, Mel and Milan Heath, Joe Batchelder, Clark Hodder and Billy McPhail will still be in the championship.

And it will be advisable not to overlook Jimmy Fisher, club champion at Bear Hill, who holed out for an "ace" at the 7th hole during his last practice round, and Francis Doyle, who was the medalist at Winchester in 32.

Elliot Sold to Columbus Team

Columbus, O. July 10 (INS)—Purchase of Jim "Jumbo" Elliot from the Atlanta club of the Southern Association was announced here today by President George Trautman of the Columbus Red Birds. It was a straight cash deal, he said.

Elliot, a right-handed pitcher, will join the Birds Friday at St. Paul. He is a former major leaguer and was the property of the Boston Braves early this season.

Pollard, Jr., Lost to Brown Eleven

Providence, R. I. July 10 (INS)—Fritz Pollard Jr. of Chicago, son of the former Brown University football hero, today had been declared ineligible for football. It was announced that Young Pollard was behind in academic work. Pollard was one of 30 men found ineligible for fall sports.

Dempsey-Sharkey Meet Once More as Pirrone Whips McCarthy

By Ringside

Patsy Pirroni scored a victory over Jack McCarthy in a ten-round bout before 6000 persons at a Goodwin A. C. show at Braves Field. Pirroni carried every round.

Pirroni furnished the big thrill of the bout in the second session when he dropped McCarthy for a count of eight with a puzzling right to the jaw. He showered McCarthy with punches, but could not stop him.

Jack Dempsey acted as referee and gave an excellent account of himself. He kept the boxers traveling at a fast clip at all times. He pried them apart quickly every time they went into a clinch and told them to fight fast.

"No wrestling, get in there and fight," said Dempsey repeatedly.

Dempsey moved around with amazing speed. He moved around the boxers with alacrity, knocked their gloves down when they were locked at close quarters, and didn't have any difficulty in breaking the big fellows.

Dempsey made a splendid impression with Boxing Commissioners Dan Kelley and Peter Carr as well as with the fans.

The decision of Referee Dempsey and Judges O'Connor and Marcin was unanimous.

DEMPSEY, SHARKEY SHAKE

Before the bout started Dempsey and Jack Sharkey met in the ring and shook hands. Dempsey then shook hands with Johnny Buckley Eastley in the evening. Dempsey paid a surprise visit to Jack Sharkey's Tavern. This ended the so-called feud between Dempsey and Sharkey.

Dempsey posed for pictures with McCarthy, Pirroni, Dan Carroll, Dan Kelley and Jack Sharkey.

McCarthy weighed 190¾, Pirroni 185¾.

In the second round Pirroni dropped McCarthy for a count of eight with a vicious right to the jaw. Patsy tried desperately for a knockout when McCarthy got up, but a right for the jaw went wild. He then countered with two short left hooks to the jaw.

Pirroni shifted his attack to the body in the third round. He drove McCarthy into a corner under a barrage of lefts and rights to the body and then sent his punches to the jaw. A stinging left hook to the jaw shook McCarthy up.

Pirroni missed a vicious right after 1m 30s of fighting in the second round.

Buckley was hit on the Adams apple with a right hand sock, and faded out of the picture.

Paddy Mack of Boston a former wrestler, had little trouble in winning from Frankie Carnes of New Haven in one round.

Tommy Murphy of Dorchester gained a surprise by outpointing Joe Ricciotti of the North End.

Tom Shaughnessy judged in the preliminaries, and Joe O'Connor and Jimmy Marcin in the main bout. O'Connor and Marcin officiated as referees in the preliminaries.

DEMPSEY WARNS MAC

There was plenty of action in the fifth round. McCarthy kept forcing his way to close quarters where he scored with hard punches.

Pirroni kept moving around at a fast clip and did his most effective scoring with a left hook to the jaw.

Pirroni increased the pace in the sixth round. He peppered McCarthy at long range with a cutting left hand, and staggered him with a looping right to the jaw.

McCarthy's right landed low and he was warned by Dempsey.

In the seventh heat, Pirroni slipped to the canvas while close to the ropes. McCarthy's right reached Pirroni's jaw as the latter glided to the canvas.

Pirroni then stood off at long range, and scored with effective left hand punches to the head.

LOTTI'S EYE CUT

Eddie Dolan of New Haven won from Victor Lotti of Marlboro after four rounds of battling. Lotti suffered a cut under his left eye and was unable to come out for the fifth round. Referee Joe O'Connor awarded the decision to Dolan when informed of Lotti's condition.

Tony Bent of Cambridge stopped Pat McKay of Watertown in the opening round of the first bout.

Lee Curtis of Pawtucket knocked out Johnny Buckley of Lewiston after 1m 30s of the second round.

THREE WAYS TO WIN

[illegible] with [illegible] kind of [illegible] or another. I got him to a place where I was gnawing his knuckles long before the day of the fight.

I'm known as the play-boy of our division, the world and all [illegible] Okay! That was never so. I decided to cash in on it. I let 'em believe I was drinking a cupful of straight whiskey, when I was only soaking up ginger ale. Say, if I drank half as much as was reported I'd have more alcohol than the National Distillers.

Stories popped up that I was out every morning with a brunette, spent my afternoons with a blonde and ended up the evening with a redhead. I wish it was true. Girls are nice people—I mean the ones that don't get too serious. But I wasn't out with any—except in mob scenes with Ancel, Mike Cantwell, my father, brother and at least 100 others.

But those stories made Carnera's brains department think that I was rushing along to physical wreckage, and that maybe I'd have to be carried into the ring on June 14, owing to a general, all-around, 100 per cent breakdown.

When I went to Asbury Park my chief ambition was to get in plenty of road work. That's what I had ducked doing through all the other years. It's a terrible grind. Up early in the morning, walk a while, run a while, sprint, walk, gallop, sprint.

But the Carnera fight was different. To win meant dreams that would come true—championship of all the fighting champions of the world.

FOURTH RACE

GAILLARDIA broke on top and was in hand throughout to defeat Master Fred and Postscript in a mile dash last Saturday. With clear sailing he should be along in time to repeat the story of victory in the apple in this affair. POSTSCRIPT was never better and figures to offer the opposition. The latter probably would have won her last start but for being shut off at the finish. CANTERSINE is a bullet away from the barrier, but she may find the distance of this affair a bit too far.

Hughes Passes Peters for Jockey Honors

By Dave Egan

Rockingham N. H., July 10—On Saturday, July 7, A. D. 1934, one Henry (Hank) Hughes, a jockey by trade, rode three winners to the finish line faster than any of the jockeys in the other races.

Yesterday, the same Henry Hughes rode four winners, with a second and a third for good measure, and the boys in the jockey room, who had come to the conclusion that Hughes was a set-up for the rest of the season, were wasting their tools aloof, and others gnashing their teeth and gnawing their cuticles, depending on the manner of their betting.

The case is not a precedent at this track this year who has ridden four winners in one day, but I suppose that little Master Hughes should be given a slap on the back by those who bet on horses, and a kick on the nethermost by those who failed to do so.

Ed note: Fuzzy Joe, according to a not unfountainlied rumor, has a hypodermic from the paws of Peter Pan to the latter. The offering is said to be a solution of Jack O'Lantern Mixture.

GAY BLADE PAYS $19.90

The old veteran from Missouri, a bewhiskered gentleman who is 17 years of age—has his hot days. On June 29, he rode Dornoch, Fred Almy, and Night Jasmine to victories. Last Friday, he had Sobriety, Dornoch and Night Jasmine.

And yesterday—that was the day when you should have bet the Mickey instead of the horse. That was the day you should have put Hughes when he was going down to Mickey's quarters for he bowed in four winners in seven races.

Yes, indeedy, the young man is a regular 2-to-make, he is. He's been head on a horse's neck and whispers into said horse's right ear.

He rewarded Gay Blade to victory yesterday, at $18.90 for a two dollar ticket, which is more than the banks will pay a person. Then he followed with Crazy Jane in the fourth, at a mere price of $6.70. Mounting Star Porter in the fifth he repeated, Saturday's performance of a triple killing by bringing the steed in the finish one at a price of $10.70, which adds up to a four-to-one bet.

PETERS STANDS STILL

Then he topped off his day's employment by riding Monte Jean to his fourth and final victory of the day. Had you partnered the four in the deuce and duce of the pay where betting is encouraged, you would have said last night the following historic word, to wit, viz, and as follows, "Whoopeeeeeeeee!"

Until yesterday, M. Peters was the leading winner of the meet. He has ridden six to down the stretch and beyond the judges' stand, at times, as compared to 11 for Hughes. But yesterday Peters rode not a winner, and Hughes, an apprentice boy, won four to his 68th victory of the year.

The standing of the jockeys: Hughes, 17 wins; M. Peters, 11 wins; Fuzzy Joe, 6 wins; G. Wellington, no wins; Col. Peters, boss of the right hall and against the bank; Maximillian Kase, up a dark alley.

Keep Your Eye on the Ball

This is the first law of every sport in which a ball is used. It is the secret of good batting as well as of good golf.

Watch the ball from the moment the pitcher begins his windup until it actually meets your bat. It may seem impossible for young batsmen to follow the flight of a fast pitch during the first, six feet in front of the plate, but with practice this will become surprisingly easy and much reflexes quicken, so that you can measure the span of a ball's flight and detect the curves before it begins to bend.

Inexperienced batters often take their eyes off the ball as they begin to swing and hit where they think the ball should be but, where, in most often, it is not. Batters who take their eye off the ball are in the game's language, "suckers for a curve

HUDSON MOTOR SALES LARGEST SINCE 1930

Market Showing Seen as Out of Line With Business

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Factory shipments of Hudson Motor Car Company were 2861 per cent greater in June of 1934 than in the same month in 1933, Roy D. Chapin, president of the company, in making the announcement today added that for the month of June retail sales were the largest the company had experienced since 1930. In commenting on the poor market since [illegible] Hudson during June we said that the behavior [illegible] ...trary to actual business results. Also we were inclined to attribute the sagging of Hudson common to a market situation in which we understood large trading interests had come to [illegible]. We feel, however, that Chapin bears us out and from other sources we find that the market situation is now cleaned up.

GENERAL IDEA IS FOR PICKUP BY OCTOBER

Business Stimulant at That Time Would Produce Votes

By LEWIS HANEY

(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, July 10—The anticipated dullness and irregularity have developed in business. This is partly the result of overestimation in the spring and partly of the many uncertainties which affect most business operations under existing conditions. It therefore is a mistake to look for another month or two.

The general idea is that business will pick up at least by October, when it is supposed that new stimulants will be administered by the new deal party, to help win votes in the November elections.

If you stop to think about it, you must admit that "business" has come to a pretty pass when we have to count on such political maneuvering as the main factor in reality, there are plenty of signs that nobody is really sure about what will happen. Almost everyone now says, "inflation is inevitable." But no one says "when." As I have pointed out, it is even possible that so many people will anticipate a "fall rise" that when fall comes there won't be much.

So it mostly comes down to a matter of psychology and guessing, and these in turn mostly depend on the political politics with its steady drift toward further inflation as the chief factor.

On the bull side of the industrial situation, we can put down the following:

Reduced prices for steel lumber automobiles, shoes and furniture, indicate a tendency to economy and more realistic business policies.

The home renovation program is being organized. Since the government is to guarantee 20 per cent of loans to home owners, it is likely that some activity will be stimulated.

The government spending program is on a huge scale and the promises to run close to $300,000,000 a month.

In this connection, bank deposits continue to grow, and to cause a greater and greater pressure on the credit machine.

The public works program is being pushed a little more actively, but is mostly more than apparently.

On the bear side of business, we note:

Most of the bullish factors depend upon the application of unsound principles, the effect of which retards sound business.

Similarly, great uncertainty exists and may so to the future. Whether was unchanged to [illegible] ... to cents higher [illegible] ... Sept. 87¼; Dec. 91¼.

While the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage bill is not considered immediately dangerous, many fear it may prove to be the entering wedge to a virtual abrogation of debt contracts.

Labor unrest continues to simmer and labor leaders may be planning renewed outbreaks for this fall, especially should business pick up well.

Retail trade is backward in most lines.

While the German situation has not yet had much influence here, it is not improbable that developments in that unfortunate country will retard world-wide recovery.

Meanwhile, the administration is [illegible] ... the matter of business after the spring pump-priming spree. Industrial activity did not get quite to be the existing scale last summer, and last week it was just about where it was in the same week a year ago. It will soon be considerably below.

More "priming" will come in time. But until we know when and how, it seems likely that the water in the business pump will settle a little lower.

One thing we have learned is that the New Deal tactics do not produce stability. Rarely have we witnessed sharper gyrations in the business curve than in the past year and a half. The recent sharp [illegible] in steel textiles, lumber, etc., together with cuts in prices, points the lesson

No one can claim that "social planning" has thus far brought any certainty or stability.

Growth of Local Debt

By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE

Chief Review of Reviews

This chart is based upon a study of local debts by the United States Bureau of the Census. It shows the growth of local debts in the twenty-year period from 1912 to 1932. Our States have been divided into six different groups with varying shadings and the percentage of increase from 1912 to 1932 noted in each State.

It may be observed that three of our States have increased their debt more than 1,000 percent during this twenty-year period. Florida leads the way with an increase of 2778.1. North Carolina comes second with 1200.8, and Michigan third with 1284.1

One more conservative states group, from standpoint of debt growth are the New England groups, a though some of our mid-western states likewise have a very good credit record. The state of Maine in this 20-year period has increased its debt only 73.2 per cent. Massachusetts comes second with 99.2 per cent and the state of Washington comes third with an increase of 121.5 per cent. In each case the debt was reckoned as the gross debt less sinking fund assets

It is also noted that in many cases there is a striking correlation between the rate of debt increase and the default record of the state. Florida and North Carolina both has the unpleasant distinction of having experienced excessive defaults of local government debt. On the other hand, the New England states whose accounts are on a par with the whole has been conservative, have an exceptional record for honoring their local government obligations.

Healy Is Believer In Stock Regulation

By Universal Service

Washington, July 10—Judge Robert E. Healy slipped into Washington six years ago—without causing a ripple—as a conservative Republican from a conservative Republican state.

He had been counsel in Bennington, Vt., for manufacturers and bankers, served on the state supreme court, and been recommended for federal office by one of the most conservative attorney generals in Washington had known.

He was not even "safe" for manipulating interests — he just knew little about them. Nevertheless he has changed conspicuously. Healy believes firmly in securities and exchange regulation. He has come to draw the first central legislation and contributed to the rich store of experience upon which the last was built.

His record for a day when accountants will be licensed and punished for false statements. Above all, he is for help and for the work of certain of his brother attorneys, whom he taxes with having made of the country's corporation laws "a mess that outstrips the stables of mythology." He told a House committee considering the act that is to help administer.

"If we do not believe you can trust the investing public the way they have been treated the last six or seven years and continue to maintain the United States or continue to have any investors."

Healys views have been influenced by the depression, which he attributes to "the speculations, evils, and by the Federal Trade Commission's six-year investigation of the security industry.

Pitchforked into this inquiry two weeks after appointment as commission chief counsel, he cut the investigating eye (goth on Samuel Insull's propaganda mill in Illinois and pushed on to expose the fabulous national power propaganda so pitilessly that most of it was abandoned.

Thereafter Healy "sweated and bled" for two years in the fevered jungles of utility holding company accounting. Few could follow him and his work pronounced power legislation profoundly.

Successe he finds in music, trout fishing and golf. Contrary to what his name is not pronounced "Heely" but "Haley" as his grandfather decided years ago.

U. S. FACING NEW DIFFICULTIES IN GERMANY

Private Investors Hold Large Part of Debts

By Associated Press

New York, July 10—While creditors of Germany wrangle over the Reich's debt moratorium, the particular difficulties faced by the United States in bargaining for concessions grow more apparent with each new set of figures.

The United States, holding about 32 per cent of the Reich's external debt, according to the latest statistics, is Germany's chief foreign creditor. Holland is second with about 20 per cent, Switzerland third, with 15 per cent and Britain fourth with 12 per cent. Germany's total external debt is placed at 10,000,000,000 Reichsmarks, half short term and half long.

Unfortunately for the United States, however, the hundreds of millions of American money lent to Germany and still unpaid is in the form of long term debt. Other creditors hold a much larger proportion of short term obligations. The United States holds 40 per cent of the Reich's long term debts and only a quarter of its short.

As a second handicap in negotiating for the best-fit of American creditors is the fact that almost three-quarters of American-held German debts are in the hands of scattered private investors with only a quarter in banks. British banks have nearly half of England's loans to the Reich, and Swiss banks more than half of that nation's credits.

British insurance companies and investment trusts constitute a large part of the "private" investors in Britain. American negotiators must constantly think of this country's many individual holders and proceed on a different line of bargaining than the British or Swiss.

England, Holland and Switzerland, in receiving concessions from Germany in debt payments, have used the threat of impounding sums due to Germany for their trade. The United States, on the contrary, buys only half as much from Germany as it sells there, and thus powerful defensive weapon cannot be used.

The total amount of debt which the Reich is 60 per cent below the peak in 1930 when it stood at 26,000,000,000 marks, including the 7,000,000,000 marks of foreign investments in Germany. Her payment in foreign exchange at such speed represents a unique achievement in financial history.

The "generosity" of foreign lenders between 1924 and 1930 enabled Germany to pay reparations and to rebuild her industry and towns and factories after the ravages of the Battles. Foreign capital ceased moving to Germany, reparations perforce had to stop.

Tri-Continental Corp. Reports an Asset Increase

Tri-Continental Corporation reports as of June 30 net assets of $60,240,918 equal to $5.304 per $1,000 of debentures, $125.21 a share of preferred stock and $2.70 a share of common stock outstanding in the hands of the public.

On December 31, 1933, net assets were $58,720,082, equal to $4,839 93 per $1,000 of debentures, $111.71 a share of preferred stock, and $1.23 a share of common stock.

In his report to stockholders, Francis F. Randolph, president, states that during the second quarter the corporation had reinvested its common stocks a portion of the amounts realized from sales of stocks earlier in the year.

"The impairment of confidence in the business outlook which was apparent at the close of the first quarter became more acute in April and May," said Mr Randolph.

"On the other hand, business activity, although reflecting the usual seasonal influences, continued on a level well above that at the turn of the year, a condition which, in the opinion of your management, did not justify the degree of pessimism generally manifested during the second quarter."

During the 20 approximately 8 per cent of the assets was held in cash or its equivalent and government securities. Investments in bonds and preferred stocks were 28 per cent of assets, and common stocks and investments in affiliated companies amounted to 64 per cent.

Income of the corporation for the six months ended June 30 was $976,900 72 and net income, after all expenses, interest and taxes, was $560,458.06. Income from fees for investment service amounted to $104,858.86, as compared with expenses of operation amounting to $177,360.03.

UNITED FRUIT NET $6,317,000

United Fruit Co reports net earnings for the first half of 1934, before taxes are $8,317,000, the equivalent of $2.13 per share on 2,925,000 shares, compared with $5,677,000, or $1.73 per share for the first half of 1933.

Cash and Government Securities, including the $1,000,000 Profit Fund) amount to $30,100 00 as compared with $31,500,000 at the close of June last year, and $37,100,000 at the beginning of 1933.

In addition to the regular dividend of 50c per share, the Company paid, in April an extra of 50c per share.

STOCK OUTPUT IN OUTBURST OF STRENGTH

New York, July 10—The stock market broke out of the rut today with a show of strength accompanied by the most active trading in weeks. Gains ran to 2 points.

There was little in the news to inspire the buying flurry other than reports from abroad that Governor Harrison of the New York Federal Reserve Bank was discussing dollar-pound stabilization at Basle. Official denials that this was under consideration served to revive inflationary psychology.

The metals and oils were the pacemakers. Motors and steels were stronger, and gains of a point were common among former specialties favorites.

Atchison and N. Y. Central led the rails up in the fact of a sharp decline in traffic last week due to both holiday. U. S. Smelting rose 2 points in the silvers, while Howe Sound, Alaska Juneau, Cerro De Pasco and American Smelting were strong.

U. S. Steel rose a point easily. Anticipating a favorable report, shipments report later in the day. Montgomery Ward was a strong spot in the farm shares.

American Telephone rose nearly 2 points on short covering encouraged by the rise in the rest of the list, and other utilities were firmer. Oils were quiet and slightly irregular. Dupont and American Can provided leadership for the industrials.

Commodities were strong. Cotton up 50 cents a bale more, 61 points above

Borah's Warning Strikes Out at Our Dangerous Bureaucrats

STIRRING words—timely, needed, to the point, and appropriate to the day—were those uttered by Senator Borah on Independence Day.

The Senator spoke twice—first in an interview at Washington and later in a radio address which was broadcast throughout the country.

The New Deal has erected, the Borah statement proceeded, A SUPER-GOVERNMENT OF BUREAUCRACY which THREATENS the LIBERTIES of the American people and the FREEDOM GUARANTEED THEM by the CONSTITUTION.

"The American ptople," he continued, "have only a slight conception of the enormous bureaucracy that has been fastened upon them. A myriad of government agencies, officials and hirelings now orders their destiny."

Touching upon the appalling increase of these government bodies, of which a recent survey reveals that there are more than eighty major Federal administrative agencies, Senator Borah declared:

"The bureaus of the new bureaucracy are innumerable. Their expense is intolerable. Their power is dangerous and threatening."

With a forthrightness that is as refreshing as it is in contrast with the mute acquiescence into which so many of our public men have subsided in their fear of the Administration's displeasure, the Senator expressed the belief that some elements of the New Deal are as vicious as Nazi-ism or Communism.

"These bureaucrats," he went on to say, "are issuing rules and regulations to govern and control the conduct of the American people, and the PEOPLE, unaware of the existence of these mandates are equally UNAWARE that whenever they violate them THEY ARE GUILTY OF A CRIME for which they can be IMPRISONED."

Citing only one of the many bureaucratic rules, which, according to Senator Borah, "ILLUSTRATE THE TYRANNY OF THE DAY," he called public attention to the fact that "an independent American citizen who happens TO SAY the processing tax is paid by the consumer, and not by the processor, CAN BE THROWN INTO JAIL."

IN his radio address Senator Borah repeated this denunciation of the bureaucratic control which the New Deal is weaving around every American citizen.

He characterized it as a "meddlesome, irritating, confusing, undermining and destructive thing."

"It is that form of government," said he, "which STEALS away man's rights in the NAME OF PUBLIC INTEREST and TAXES HIM TO DEATH in the NAME OF RECOVERY.

"Of all forms of government," said he, "which have been permitted to TORTURE the human family, the most burdensome, expensive, demoralizing and devastating to human happiness and the most DESTRUCTIVE OF HUMAN VALUES, is a bureaucracy. It has DESTROYED EVERY CIVILIZATION upon which it has fastened its lecherous grip."

THE Senator struck at the undisputed fact that the New Deal has fostered monopoly.

Recalling the declaration in the last Democratic platform that one of the chief causes of the present disaster was the encouragement given by the Hoover Administration to the merger of competitive business into monopoly, he declared that NEVER was monopoly more unrestrained or more ruthless than under the present Administration "with small business struggling for existence against fostered and protected monopoly."

So thinks and speaks a great Senator—warning against dangers which countless millions of Americans are beginning to discern only too clearly.

Boston Shoe Fair Is Breaking Record

SHOE Market Fair Week, which is now under way, shows that Boston and the rest of New England have lost none of their vaunted leadership in the shoe and leather trades.

The number of exhibitors this year exceeds all previous records.

There are twice as many exhibitors as there were last year.

About 350 Shoe manufacturers and members of allied trades have prepared their lines for official inspection of buyers.

From time immemorial buyers, and particularly shoe buyers, have gone where the larger number of shoe lines are shown. Such a competent observer as the Shoe & Leather Reporter says, if the procedure is followed this year, sellers will be hard pressed to care for them.

Then, too, it is interesting to note that this year quality is being stressed. And in all probability this feature of the new shoe lines will be the keynote of this gathering of buyers and sellers.

To the visiting buyers we extend the best wishes of hospitable Boston. Trusting they enjoy the many entertainment features prepared for them. And, most important, may they find the quality merchandise of our shoe trades to their liking.

To our modern Yankee traders we wish good luck. May their straightforward efforts to supply the best meet with success. For they have long played an honorable and leading part in the industrial life of New England.

Pages of Road Detours

Bulletin just issued by the Massachusetts State Department of Public Works shows whole pages of detours. Indicating that far-spread road repair and building plans are under way.

This highway upbuilding gives employment to large numbers of citizens in all the New England States.

Public officials should see to it that as much as possible of the work is done early in the season.

Just as many will be given employment. Discomfort for the tourists who spend many thousands of dollars in this section every summer will be avoided.

Our own autoists, who pay a tremendous burden of heavy taxation into the coffers of the several states, might also appreciate any consideration shown to them.

Sprague on Criticism

Professor O. M. W. Sprague of Harvard is right when he says frank criticism should not hurt constructive policies at Washington. This is for the few who resent helpful discussion.

Going back to his "old home town," St. Johnsbury, Vt., the famous economist, former advisor to the Bank of England as well as to the United States Treasury Department, received a splendid ovation.

Rotary Club members had Professor Sprague introduced to them as "a citizen of the world." His defense of proper criticism followed.

It is to be believed that Professor Sprague is far prouder of being an American citizen than of being "a citizen of the world."

No Taxis for Prisoners

United States Marshal John J. Murphy deserves commendation for his decision to use a patrol wagon to transport prisoners from the Federal Building in Boston to the East Cambridge jail.

The marshal expects to save Uncle Sam about $2500 a year by using the patrol wagon. In the past it has been the practice to transport prisoners in taxicabs.

There seems to be no reason why prisoners on their way to jail from the courthouse should object to riding in a comfortable patrol wagon.

Also no reason why they should be allowed the use of taxicabs, which so many good citizens these days cannot afford to enjoy.

City of Conventions

Manager Bradbury F. Cushing of the Statler once styled Boston "the City of Conventions."

It has ever since lived up to that nickname. The latest gathering to pick Boston for its 1935 annual session is the Supreme Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose.

An outstanding reason for Boston's popularity as a convention city is its hotel accommodations, which are rarely surpassed or even equalled elsewhere.

Can the Hohenzollerns come back? Are events in Germany moving to bring them back? And if they do come back, which one of that Brandenburg brood will again hold the sceptre over the throne of Frederick the Great and William I?

Will it be the aged ex-Kaiser who fled over the Dutch border to his long exile at Doorn, keeping his shadowy court, chopping wood, reading the prayers to his family circle? Or will it be an ex-Prince?

All of these queries bubble out of the present welter of politics in the Reich. For the Nazis seem to be dividing among themselves. Hitler's star seems to be fading. And a sentiment for the old monarchy, long repressed, but obviously strong deep down in the tides of public opinion, seems to be trending toward the restoration.

THE STEEL HELMETS

The Steel Helmets, frankly for the return of the one-time ruling dynasty, have the silent support of the old lion, von Hindenburgh, who long supported the republic in its brief and futile existence.

The great land-owners of Silesia and East Prussia are ardently for the restoration, and recent news items indicate more than a little support from the conservative middle class, the professors and shopkeepers.

Will Germany, therefore, travel the full road back and bow the knee again before the eagles of Hohenzollern, while the Prussian Guards and the Death's Head Hussars execute a triumphant goose-step in the palace yard at Potsdam? Who dares say no in the face of what is transpiring today in Germany?

The Weimar constitution is a scrap of paper torn to shreds. The Republic of Ebert, the saddle-maker, is relegated to history. Preparations are wiped out and even the state of war guilt is officially cancelled.

Perhaps the world expected too much when it thought that a few years could drive out of a people that which for years has been bred in their bones. Respect for authority. Veneration of kings. The habit of taking orders from the All Highest.

And with the Hitler regime apparently staggering, the old-time Germanic habits of looking to the throne seem to have come back. The Hohenzollerns are a hardy lot. For nine hundred years they have had their ups and downs through fire and blood, turning out strong men and imbeciles in about equal proportion.

As petty nobles in southeastern Germany, they moved into the north to become rulers of Brandenburg, because one of their number saved in battle the life of the Emperor Sigismund of Hungary.

MISCHIEF FIGURES

The old Margrave of Brandenburg and then Frederick the Great and the Emperor William the First, with Bismark, his Iron Chancellor, and finally the ill-fated William the Second, the exile of Doorn.

There they stand, the chief figures among the twenty kings of Prussia. The ex-Kaiser, King and Emperor for thirty years; in seventy-five, but he carries his years well, saws wood, reads the Bible, watches the foreign exchanges for their effect on his personal fortunes, and keeps in close touch with the surge of events in Berlin.

Always in his mind is the effect that these events will have on the fortunes of what he believes is the heaven-ordained House of Hohenzollern.

The latest word is that he is eager to return to Germany, as the Emperor. Recent visitors to his tranquil refuge in Holland, who have seen him with his dachshunds, his busy saw, and conducting Sunday services from his household, find him clinging still to a hope which he expresses in these words: "It may please God to call me back."

There are strange times, and Germany, seeking tranquillity, may be minded to restore either the old Kaiser of his eldest son.

CASE OF HAPSBURGS

The case of the Hapsburgs is different and less hopeful. The one-time empire of Franz Joseph, ripped apart by the treaty-makers of Versailles, is given over to such dissention and turmoil as makes any prediction of the future like seeing through a dark glass.

In constricted and crippled Austria, little Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss clings to power, suspended perilously between the Socialists and the Nazis, with Hitler frowning ominously just over the border.

In Hungary, sadly reduced in territory and resources by the terms of the Peace of Versailles, Admiral Horthy holds on as Regent, with not a sign of friendship toward the blood royal.

Americans who have visited in Buda-Pesth and talked intimately with Hungarians "in the know" are convinced that as long as Horthy governs as Regent there is no hope of the restoration of the Hapsburg line.

The heir, of course, is young, handsome, glamorous Archduke Otto, just past his twenty-first birthday, romantically inspired by the ancient traditions of the power and glory of his house, incessantly driven along the road of ambition by his fiery-spirited mother, the Ex-Empress Zita of Bourbon-Parma.

Young Otto dreams of the day when the national pride of his countrymen will call him back to the throne and when he can stand as the symbol of Austrian or Hungarian hopes of regaining their one-time exalted place in the family of nations.

But a chill was cast over his dreams just the other day when the French Premier, Barthou, went to Rumania to be feted and toasted and decorated and greeted with wild acclaim by the very people whom Hungary detests as spoilers of their territory.

And Barthou seemed by all this hospitality and good Hungarian Tokay, promises the Rumanians that France will resist to the utmost any efforts to change the status quo—in other words, to restore to Hungary the vast tracts of land gained by Rumania at the expense of her neighbor.

Nevertheless, there are many European statesmen who recall the laconic utterance of Prince Metternich, that if Austria did not exist it would be necessary to create an Austria for the peace of Europe. And Austria, which takes in Hungary for the purpose of that diplomatic aphorism, certainly does not exist today in any historic sense.

Defeat of Murray Leaders Good News for Oklahoma

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Good news goes out to the four corners of the country from the people of Oklahoma.

They have just nominated in the Democratic and Republican primaries of that state two strong men for governor. They have suffered many ills under "Alfalfa Bill" Murray's administration as governor and obviously are eager for a change.

TWO BUSINESS CANDIDATES

This was demonstrated by the result in the Democratic primary where the winner was opposed by the Murray faction. Ernest W. Marland, whom the Democrats have nominated as their candidate for governor is an educated man of independent means and considerable experience in public life.

A native of Pittsburgh and a graduate of the law school of the University of Michigan, he has been an independent producer and royalty owner since 1928. Never active before in politics, he was elected to Congress in 1932 from a district which prior to that time had always been represented in Congress by a Republican—the only Republican district in Oklahoma.

Mr. Marland was supported in the primaries for governor by Roosevelt Democrats and Roosevelt Republicans and is pledged, if elected, to co-operate with the Roosevelt administration in giving Oklahoma a "new deal" administration.

His Republican opponent, W. B. Pine of Okmulgee, is a native of Bluffs, Ill. He has been in turn farmer, oil producer and manufacturer. His chief public service has been in the United States Senate to which he was elected in 1924. He was defeated for re-election in 1930 by his Democratic opponent, Senator Gore, who had retired from the Senate in 1921 after serving three successive terms.

This is the first time since Oklahoma entered the Union as the 46th state in 1907 that her citizens have nominated for governor two men of independent means who have already represented the state in the national legislature—the one in the House and the other in the Senate.

KEY TO LEGISLATION

The cause of popular government would be the gainer, north, east, south and west, if the other 34 states which elect governors in 1934 would elect men qualified by character and experience for an office that ought to be second in importnce only to the exalted office of the Presidency.

What the President is to the people of the United States, the governor should strive to be to the people of his own state. The governor is the only state official who represents all the people of his state, just as the President is the only federal official who represents the whole American people in their corporate capacity as a nation.

For the most part the powers of a government are executive powers. Theoretically, he has no legislative functions, but in practice he can, if he is a strong leader, exercise a tremendous influence over the course of legislation.

Certainly, in the gigantic task of modernizing the obsolete system of county and local government, which inflicts nearly every state in the union, the leadership of a strong governor is essential if the people are ever to throw off the yoke of ox cart government and substitute popular government for the costly exploitation which pork-barrel politicians have the effrontery to call government.

There was a natural prejudice against the office of governor among the framers of the original 13 state constitutions. This prejudice, as Dr. William Xenett Munro in his authoritative book on "The Government of the United States" explains, was "a legacy from colonial days when the governor had to carry out the instructions which came to him from England and hence obtained on many occasions a reputation for high-handedness which was not of his own making."

This was the reason why these original constitutions made the legislature the predominant arm of the government in all the states and reduced the office of governor to a post of relatively small importance.

ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENT

During the last 150 years this situation has entirely changed but there is still plenty of room for improvement in the types of men elected to the office of governor, even in recent years in most of the states of the union.

And seldom in American history has there been greater need in the several states for the leadership of action which only a strong governor can raise up—a leadership strong enough to force the modernizing of our obsolete systems of county and local government.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Someone, in remembrance, has given me a little figure of Mary. Such a crude bit of pottery, you might wonder why it has such power. The fingers of the one who fashioned it, some unknown peasant, knew little of the complicated business we call Art. Nor, I suspect, would Art have helped him greatly in the thing he wished to do.

To mold something that would mean love, something that would show the comfort and joy and helpfulness that lay in love, even for a poor peasant; to mold it in the form of that Gentle Lady who was poor, like himself, yet through her love walked free in every heart—that was what he wished to do. And only his heart could tell him how.

Elsie Robinson

So he went about it in his own way, using the simple methods and materials that were natural to him. Kneeling there in the dim, green cavern of some old fig tree's shade, with his sweat-stained mattock lying forgotten in the soft field, he fashioned the small figure clumsily, patiently, from the common clay, and burned the clay to hardness in the small brick oven he had built himself.

Then, with crude colors ground from that same soil, he gave her such crude beauty as he could. Some small, blue flowers on her rough, white robe, a touch of gold about the Baby's head, a flare of gold about her brooding face.

Now I hold the thing he made, so crudely modeled you can hardly trace kind Mary's face. Yet from it comes such healing gentleness that it is like the touch of kind, strong hands.

A bit of common clay, warmed by a simple peasant's faith and love, so small it's easily hidden in one hand—so great its comfort spreads through all the world.

Love is like that. Not some rare gift sent, ready made, from distant Paradise . . . but built by tenderness and toil from simple things.

Love is like that. Built from the simplest things. Some tears, some laughter, some bright flash of faith, softening and warming our poor human clay.

Yet from it comes a miracle that heals the world!
